

Easy 'hit' for thieves found dead

MEXICO, Mo. (AP) — Guy J. Mathes, 94, who lived alone in his duplex for more than a decade, reported break-ins to police in January, April and May.

During the last break-in, Mathes reported, the thieves threw a blanket over his head and held him while they took $3 from his billfold. He could not identify his assailants, and no arrests were made.

Mathes' body was found in the utility room of his duplex Tuesday. His empty wallet lay beside his body which had been stabbed twice in the chest.

He last talked to a son-in-law three days before his body was found. A neighbor reported seeing him Sunday.

"Who would take advantage of an old man like that? You can come up with a list of 100 as the answer," Don Bolli, the city's public safety director, speculated Wednesday.

"The polygraph tests, we hope, will narrow it down some," he said, announcing that he planned to give lie detector tests. Bolli said he had no suspects.

Authorities said they were interviewing relatives and acquaintances and planned to review reports of three previous thefts from the man's residence.

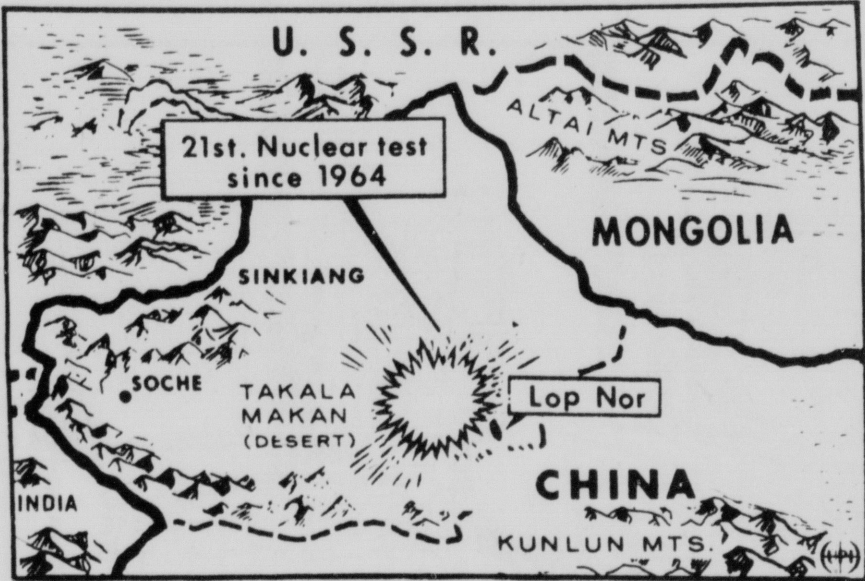

A housing authority official found Mathes' body after being alerted by health department officials, who contacted him routinely to check on his health. Authorities said nothing in the house besides Mathes and his billfold appeared to have been disturbed.

U.S. monitoring fallout

Largest ever

Radio Peking said Wednesday's blast was China's fourth nuclear test this year and 21st since 1964. Peking said the hydrogen bomb explosion of about 4 megatons was its largest ever. It was intended to celebrate the new Chinese leadership of Hua Kuo-feng and last month's purge of the "gang of four." (UPI)

WASHINGTON (AP) — American officials are checking for any fallout from China's latest nuclear test explosion, the largest in China's 12-year history as a nuclear power.

U.S. officials expressed hope that the above-ground explosion on Wednesday would not cause hazardous radiation levels in the United States.

The blast was 20 times larger than the last Chinese test explosion in September. But the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) reported that with favorable weather conditions the fallout here from the blast may not exceed the low and harmless amounts of radiation caused by the September test.

However, the levels could be increased, for example, by heavy rains when the radioactive cloud from the explosion passes over the United States, the EPA said.

ERDA said the explosion had a force of four megatons, or 4 million tons of TNT. The September blast measured 200,000 tons.

Meanwhile, Japan's Kyodo News Service and the Japanese newspaper Asahi reported from Peking that Western military sources say that the latest test may signal completion by the Chinese of a strategic nuclear warhead for missiles.

The Chinese nuclear explosion in September resulted in a sprinkling of low-level radiation in the United States. The greatest fallout was in the East, where significant traces of radiation turned up in cows' milk, particularly in Pennsylvania. But the radioactivity never reached levels considered hazardous to humans, officials said.

The explosion was the fourth Chinese nuclear test this year. The Soviet Union and the United States have agreed not to test nuclear devices in the atmosphere.

The atomic bombs that the United States dropped on Japan during World War II were rated at 20 kilotons — equal in explosive force to 20,000 tons of TNT — or 200 times smaller than the latest Chinese test.

Courts-martial studied after Marine attack

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — A commando-style attack by up to 10 black Marines using screwdrivers and other weapons against seven white Marines at Camp Pendleton has prompted an investigation that could lead to courts-martial, a base official says.

A military magistrate was to decide, possibly today, whether to try four black Marines who were taken into custody after the clubbing and stabbing assault in a new motel-style barracks Saturday night, a base spokesman said.

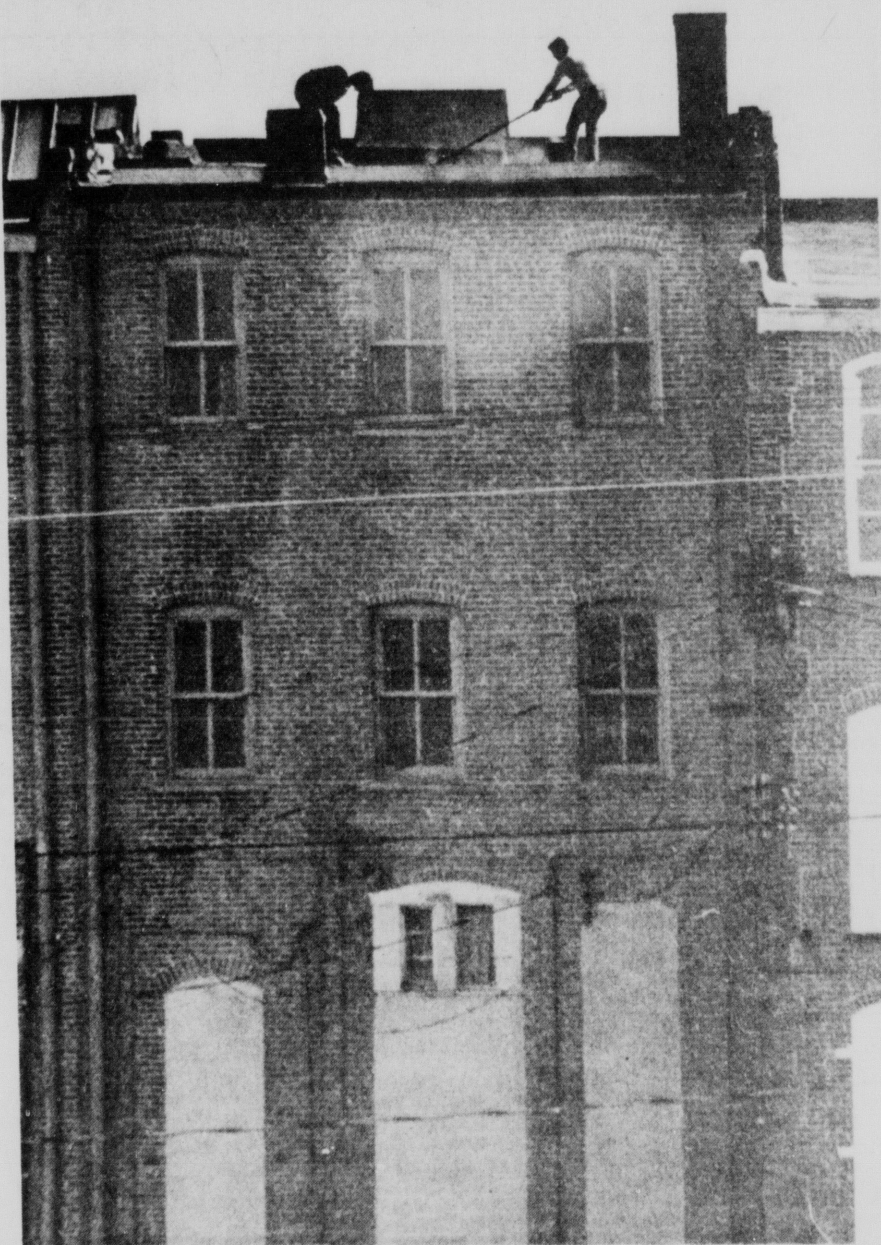

All but one of the white Marines were injured in the incident, and three of them remain hospitalized in satisfactory condition at the base hospital.

Spokesman Lt. Charles Owen refused comment on anonymous telephone calls to local newspapers saying the targets of the attack were white power advocates. "The investigation has not been completed," he said.

But Owen confirmed that in addition to the black Marines already identified, three to five more were being sought for questioning.

Owen said a military magistrate now taking testimony would determine whether evidence shows there was a crime, whether there is reason to order courts-martial for the four men in custody, and whether they should be released or held in the brig pending trial.

The military courts system does not

Cabinet selections due Dec. 1 or later

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter will not name any of his Cabinet members before Dec. 1, his spokesman said today.

Press Secretary Jody Powell said it would be premature to speculate about the names of prospective Cabinet members or others who might hold high positions in the Carter administration.

At a briefing for reporters, Powell also:

— Said Carter is "pleased" by Chile's announcement that its right-wing military government released 133 political prisoners Wednesday and its promise to free 150 more today.

"I am sure he would hope that it is a signal of more general liberalization of politics there," Powell said.

— Declined comment on a recommendation by Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board against a tax cut at the present time. However, Burns did not rule out changing his mind if the economy fails to recover from its current slowdown.

Powell said Carter's "inclination is to wait and see" what economic indicators look like when the new administration takes office. Carter has said in the past that he will consider a tax reduction next year if the economic slowdown continues.

Carter will meet with Burns on Monday after visit to the White House to meet with President Ford. Powell said Carter also plans to meet with House and Senate committee chairmen in Washington on Tuesday.

— Reported that Carter reviewed suggestions and proposals for requiring his appointees to disclose their finances and to divest themselves of interests that may be in conflict with their government duties.

Powell said Carter also is looking at his own financial matters in the same light, adding that the president-elect is unsure what to do with his financial interest in his family's peanut farm and warehouse.

The press secretary's one hint about an appointment was to say "it is reasonable to assume" that Carter will ask State Rep. Ben Brown of Georgia "to help us in the transition and at some point afterwards in the administration as well."

But Powell said he did not know in what capacity.

Brown, who served as deputy national director of Carter's campaign, said Wednesday in Atlanta that he expects to become the first black appointed to a staff position in Carter's administration.

A key Carter staff member says the president-elect's promised reorganization of the federal government will be carried out in a "very careful, deliberate process" over the next two to three years.

Carter discussed that proposed reorganization, the economy, and his dealing with the House and Senate in a three-hour meeting with Democratic congressional leaders Wednesday at Sen. Herman Talmadge's home at Lovejoy, Ga., about 40 miles south of Atlanta. He later received expressions of support from some of the legislators present.

Carter, who was repeatedly referred to as "Mr. President" at the meeting, said later he had asked the legislators to "direct me to make the executive branch more efficient."

Another topic was Carter's expressed desire to forge a bipartisan foreign policy. A Carter aide later said Carter will seek a meeting with Republican leaders to ask advice and "give them a

GNP growth lower

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government today reduced its estimate of growth in the nation's economic output to 3.8 per cent during the fall quarter, or just below the level generally considered necessary to whittle down unemployment.

The Commerce Department had estimated last month that the Gross National Product — the total output of goods and services — grew at an annual rate of 4 per cent in the third quarter. The revised figures show that the original estimate was dragged down by a poorer than expected performance in foreign trade.

The department originally had estimated a surplus for trade in goods and services at an annual rate of $5.9 billion, but later reports reduced the estimate to a $3.4 billion surplus.

Commerce also reduced its original estimate of inflation during the July-September period. Inflation totaled 4.2 per cent at an annual rate during the quarter instead of the original estimate of 4.4 per cent.

In the previous quarter, inflation was 5.2 per cent at an annual rate while the economic output growth rate was 4.5 per cent. In the first three months of the year, the economic output registered a 9.2 per cent advance.

The revision in the GNP means that despite initial projections of healthy growth in the economy for the last half of this year, the growth this fall was below the 4 per cent rate considered necessary to provide enough jobs merely to meet the demands of normal population growth.

From June to October, unemployment has advanced from 7.3 per cent to 7.9 per cent.

Administration economists have said they still expect growth to pick up in the last quarter of the year, even though the key retail sales and industrial production indicators have shown no growth in the first month of the final quarter.

Manpower vs. weapons may confront Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Steadily rising costs may force Congress to make "hard choices" in allocating defense funds between manpower and new weapons, a new study warns.

Although the report prepared by the General Accounting Office was directed to Congress, its conclusions carry significant implications for President-elect Jimmy Carter.

Among other things, the GAO report says there are limits to manpower cost reductions that can be achieved by improving efficiency in the use of defense personnel. "Larger reductions can only be achieved by policy changes affecting strength and pay levels," it said.

During his successful campaign for the presidency, Carter pledged to cut the defense budget by $5 billion to $7 billion, mainly by eliminating waste, improving efficiency, and changing some personnel policies.

Carter also called for a withdrawal of the 42,000 U.S. ground troops from South Korea over a four-to-five-year period, but he did not advocate reducing the size of the Army.

He has said nothing about cutting the pay of the Defense Department's 2.1 million military personnel and one million civilian employees.

In the report sent to Congress after the Nov. 2 election, the GAO cautioned that "changing national military policies or lowering pay levels would be controversial and should not be undertaken without careful study."

GAO analysts noted that personnel costs have absorbed an increasing share of the Pentagon's resources since 1964 and now eat up well over half the defense budget.

"Meanwhile, costs of weapons have rapidly risen, causing serious concern that the country may not be able to afford enough of the weapons needed for its defense," the report said.

"If the budget is to be restrained, the Congress will be confronted with hard choices in allocating funds between manpower and weapons systems."

The report cited figures showing that payroll and other personnel costs account for about 53 per cent of the $99.6 billion projected for defense spending this year. A dozen years ago, personnel costs absorbed about 44 per cent of a defense budget that was half as big.

St. Louis airport decision argued before federal judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. promised Wednesday to rule as quickly as possible on whether U.S. Secretary of Transportation William T. Coleman Jr. had the right to authorize construction of a new St. Louis airport in Illinois.

The challenge of Coleman's authority was one of a welter of questions Robinson faced in a 2½ hour hearing here.

Robinson repeatedly remarked that most Missourians want to retain Lambert St. Louis International Airport as the area's major air terminal. Their desires, Robinson said, must be weighed against Coleman's authority.

Whichever side loses, Robinson said his decision would likely be appealed to the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis. Missourians are seeking a preliminary injunction halting the project.

After the authority question is settled, Robinson will consider whether Coleman's decision was justified.

Also before the judge are a request by Missourians for permission to question federal officials, outside consultants and others and the government's request for an immediate ruling upholding Coleman's decision.

Former U.S. Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold, Missouri's chief spokesman, argued that Coleman violated federal law by "overriding the choice of an overwhelming majority" of St. Louis area residents.

Griswold contended that the Federal Aviation Administration and Transportation Department stacked the deck against Lambert by manipulating the information, studies and analyses upon which Coleman based his decision.

There has long been a conviction in the FAA, Griswold explained, that the future lies in huge airports remote from the center of metropolitan areas.

He pointed out that the proposed Illinois site is 30 miles from the St. Louis population center, while Lambert is only 10 miles.

Justice Department attorney Gary B. Randall replied that Missourians merely disagree with Coleman's decision, but cannot show that it was arbitrary or capricious, as the law requires for a temporary injunction.

At wit's end

Are we rich?

By ERMA BOMBECK

The other day out of a clear, blue sky Brucie asked, "Are we rich?"

I paused on my knees as I retrieved a dime from the sweeper bag, blew the dust off, and asked, "Not so you can notice why?"

"How can you tell?" he asked.

I straightened up and thought a bit. Being rich is a relative sort of thing. Here's how I can always tell:

"You're rich when you buy your gas at the same service station all the time so your glasses match."

"You're rich when you can have eight people to dinner and don't have to wash forks between the main course and dessert."

"You're rich when you buy clothes for your kids that are two sizes too big for the one you buy 'em for and four sizes too big for the one that comes after him."

"You're rich when you own a boat—without oars."

"You can tell people have money when they record a check and don't have to subtract it right away."

"People have money when they sit around and joke with the cashier while she's calling in their charge to see if it's still open."

"You're rich when you write notes to the teacher on paper without lines."

"You're rich when your television set has all the knobs on it."

"You're rich when you can throw away a pair of pantyhose just because it has a large hole in it."

"You know people are loaded when they don't have to save rubber bands from the celery and store them on a doorknob."

"You're rich when you can have a home wedding without 'Haven Funeral Home' stamped on the folding chairs."

"You're rich when the Scouts have a paper drive and you have a stack of New York Times in your basement.

"You're rich when your dog is wet and smells good."

"You're rich when your own hair looks so great everyone thinks it's a wig."

Brucie sat quietly for a moment, then said, "I think my friend, Ronny, is rich."

"How can you tell?" I asked.

"His mom buys his birthday cake at a bakery and it isn't even cracked on top."

"He's rich, all right," I sighed.

Music symbols

Above Mrs. Ramona Crowley practices the hand signals for "sol" on the musical scale with the first grade students at Sacred Heart. The students learn a signal for each note of the scale. Left, Sixth grade students practice clapping rhythms patterns as one student points to the symbols on the wall. The symbols are the "stem" part of the note with the circle at the bottom left off.

Hungarian teaching methods help Sacred Heart students learn music

Ramona Crowley teaches music to children at Sacred Heart Grade School.

But she doesn't just teach them to sing. By the time they reach fourth grade her students know all the basic skills of music and can even begin to write their own music.

Using a method, of teaching music that was developed in Hungary 40 years ago, children learn to read music at the same time they learn to read words.

Under the Kodaly (pronounced ko-dye) method, developed by the composer Zoltan Kodaly, children in kindergarten and first grade begin to learn music by feeling the beat. They clap the rhythms, step the rhythms and say the rhythms using nonsense syllables that stand for the different rhythmic values of notes. For instance, when they see a quarter note they call it "ta."

The use of the piano is discouraged with this method especially at first. Mrs. Crowley said, "Kodaly believed that because most pianos in classrooms and practice rooms are out of tune the children cannot hear the pitch properly and therefore will sing out of tune."

After they begin to master the rhythms, Mrs. Crowley begins to teach the children the concepts of high-low, loud-soft and fast-slow. In order to accomplish high-low for example, Mrs. Crowley uses hand signals. The notes of the scale are each given a hand signal which is positioned high or low in relation to the body depending on the note's position in the scale. Low "do" is approximately waist high while high "do" is at the head.

To reinforce this concept, the children learn to write the notes on the staff as early as first grade. They learn how to find "do" and where "sol" is in relation to it.

Tone matching is used to teach the student to sing in tune. Mrs. Crowley sings a tone and the pupils must match it exactly.

Along with this exercise usually comes an admonition to use the singing voice as opposed to the speaking voice. Many children sing out of tune, according to Mrs. Crowley, just because they are trying to use the speaking voice. It sometimes requires individual attention to help a child find his singing voice.

The children then progress from tone matching to learning simple folk songs.

After the basic skills of music have been mastered, the students begin a study of musical form and design through a study of the music of the United States. Then attention is turned to the great masters of music from the old world and there is an introduction to the instruments of the orchestra.

Mrs. Crowley has used this method with kindergarten through sixth graders at Sacred Heart for two years. Seventh and eighth grade students at the school have a music appreciation course because the method stresses that the student begin to learn this method as he learns to read.

According to Mrs. Crowley, studies have shown that children who were taught through this method showed improved reading and math skills.

Mrs. Crowley, wife of Lt. Daniel Crowley, Whiteman Air Force Base, received her training at Westminster Chior College, Princeton, N. J. She received 10 weeks of concentrated study in the Kodaly method in Massachusetts as a result of being exposed to the method when she was involved in student teaching.

She has taught using this method in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and now at Sacred Heart. She says that she has never taught the more conventional methods because the Kodaly method is "so successful I couldn't let it go."

Stressing the importance of specialized training for anyone teaching this method, Mrs. Crowley said that many teachers are unsuccessful because they try to use just bits and pieces of the method.

She went on to say that one reason the method was developed in Hungary is that the Hungarians consider a person illiterate if he cannot read music. The Hungarian schools consider music, reading and physical education the three basic subjects.

Death Notices

Maj. William Y. Spears

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Maj. William Y. Spears, a retired Air Force pilot, died Wednesday at his home here.

He was born June 3, 1921, in Ottawa, Kan. He married Mary Dee Monsees of Smithton, who survives of the home here.

Maj. Spears served as a pilot in Europe and the Pacific in World War Two and in the Korean War.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one sister, Mrs. E. L. Lloyd, Ottawa; three sons, James Glen Spears, Austin, Tex.; John W. Spears, Tempe, Ariz.; Richard Spears, of the home; and two daughters, Susan Spears and Mary Spears, both of the home.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Mrs. Vallie Hart

Funeral services for Mrs. Vallie Hart, 81, Fairview Nursing Home, who died Tuesday, will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Ewing Funeral Home with the Rev. Lawrence Stewart officiating.

Pallbearers will be David Knight, Steve Grose, Jack Venable, Jerry Venable, Buck Venable and Sonny Gamber.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery.

Extradition is waived by Nebraska man

LINCOLN, Neb. — A Nebraska man, imprisoned here, has signed a waiver of extradition to Pettis County where he has been wanted on forgery charges since 1973.

Thomas P. Bousfield, also known as Rene D. Desforges, 51, whose last address was South Sioux Falls, Neb., remains in prison here pending the arrival of Pettis County sheriff authorities. Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said he did not know when Bousfield would be brought back to Sedalia.

Bousfield is charged with "possession of a forged instrument and intent to utter it" and was arraigned on the charge Oct. 1, 1973 in Pettis County Magistrate Court. He was then released on $3,500 bond but failed to appear for his trial in Pettis County Circuit Court.

Bousfield, then going under the name of Deforges, allegedly attempted to cash a forged check on Sept. 28, 1973, at Sedalia Mercantile Bank and Trust, then Sedalia Bank and Trust. The check was for $175.55 and written on a Maryville, Mo., bank.

After his disappearance from Sedalia, Bousfield has served time in jail for different forgery charges in Iowa, Leavenworth, Kan., and Nebraska.

Woman bound over to Circuit Court

Linda Sue Hontz, 31, 1118 East Ninth, was bound over to Circuit Court Wednesday on a felony charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm in connection with a shooting incident Oct. 9.

She was arrested after allegedly firing three shots from a .22 caliber pistol at Trudy Burris, 1430 West Main.

She remains free on $3,500 bond.

Mrs. Gertrude B. Staley

Funeral services for Mrs. Gertrude B. Staley, 70, 2221 East Ninth, who died Tuesday, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel with the Rev. James McQueen officiating.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Guidelines for city plan to be approved

A guideline for drafting a detailed 25-year plan for the city will be adopted at the fourth and final public hearing on this issue, to be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Municipal Building.

At three previous public sessions, held last September, in-pout from various citizens and groups throughout the community was received. Tonight's meeting, like the three previous ones, will be conducted by the city Planning and Zoning Commission.

Commission chairman George Berenyi said a final framework plan has been drafted. Asked if last-minute changes suggested by tonight's audience could be incorporated into the plan, Berenyi said "it's a possibility, but only unless someone brings up what we consider to be a serious flaw do I expect the document to be changed."

Following the adoption of this plan, work will begin on drafting the detailed 25-year plan, Berenyi said.

Man enters innocent plea to lake deaths

BOLIVAR, Mo. (AP) — Jeffrey Clinton Wylie, 30, pleaded innocent Wednesday to four charges of manslaughter in connection with the drownings Sept. 24 of his wife and three children in Lake Pomme de Terre.

Wylie was the only survivor of the Humansville, Mo., family when his station wagon plunged from a boat ramp at Bolivar Landing into the reservoir.

Trapped inside the car were his wife, Mrs. Nancy Myers Wylie, 35, their son, Jeffrey Richard Wylie, 3, and Mrs. Wylie's 8-year-old twins, Karen and Kevin Myers.

A Polk County coroner's jury later ruled culpable negligence, charging Wylie with "driving into the lake knowing they were trapped in the station wagon, and making no effort to rescue them."

Wylie's attorneys at his preliminary hearing Wednesday in Polk County District Court were granted assignment of a new judge on petition that the defendant "had just cause to believe...that he cannot have a fair and impartial trial" otherwise.

County judges vote to find way to resolve problems

Eastern District Judge Russell McFatrach Wednesday joined in the unanimous vote of the board of directors of the Missouri Association of Counties regarding ways to compensate for the anticipated loss of tax revenue created by the recent passage of a special tax to be used for state conservation and park projects.

Because any land purchased by the state for park development or other purposes is exempt from taxation, the board voted to meet soon with officials of the State Department of Conservation. The board plans to discuss proposals to establish an equitable formula for providing compensation to counties to cover the loss of property tax revenue.

"Because counties rely so heavily on property taxes to finance their various operations, there needs to be some way that they will continue to receive funds to make up what they will lose when the state buys land in counties," McFatrach explained. "We don't want more money, we just don't want to lose what we have got now."

Knob Noster man killed in accident

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — A Knob Noster man was killed today when his car was struck by a train at a crossing about four miles east of Warrensburg.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said that William Jackson Mayes, 68, died after the westbound freight train hit his car about 8:45 a.m. Mayes was thrown from the vehicle and was pronounced dead on arrival at Johnson County Hospital in Warrensburg.

'I knew I was going to die'

Man entombed for 90 minutes

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Daniel Durham says he looks at life differently now that he has the chips off his shoulders — some 30,000 pounds of them that entombed him alive for 90 minutes.

Durham was dumped into a truck, buried under six feet of wood chips and carried 40 miles while his screams went unheard. Someone even walked over the chips, unaware that Durham was buried beneath.

"All of a sudden I was falling, and then I was buried," Durham said Wednesday. "I may have blacked out a couple times from suffocation. I knew I couldn't last more than five minutes more."

Durham was leveling chips in an elevated bin last Friday when he was dumped accidentally into the truck, which then headed for a fiber company 40 miles away.

Jerry Thorp, supervisor at Lumber Specialty Industries Inc., said Durham had neglected to block the driveway with a board that keeps trucks from backing under the bin while

Burns says 'not now' on tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board today recommended against a tax cut at the present time, but did not rule one out if the economy fails to recover from its current slowdown.

"I see no advantage in a tax cut at the present time," Burns said. "My mind on the subject, however, is by no means closed."

President-elect Jimmy Carter has said he will consider a tax reduction next year if the economic slowdown continues. Some of Carter's advisers have expressed concern that the Federal Reserve Board could offset the benefits by tightening the nation's money supply.

Burns has been trying to head off a possible conflict with Carter on the matter.

The chairman made his statements in a speech prepared for the United States League of Savings Associations in New York. His remarks came as the government reduced its estimate of growth in the nation's economic output to 3.8 per cent during the fall quarter.

That rate is just below the level generally considered necessary to whittle down unemployment.

Referring to a tax cut, Burns said he "will weigh the issue carefully" if the economy appears to need such a stimulus and if there are "economies" in federal spending.

While some of Carter's advisers have said they would prefer a one-time tax rebate, Burns said he would prefer a broad-based permanent tax reduction for both business and individuals, similar to a tax cut enacted in the early 1960s.

"Such a measure, on a responsible scale, would minimize social conflict and have the best chance of producing lasting economic benefits for our country," he said.

Carter, on the other hand, has said he will consider tax cuts aimed at benefiting low and middle-income workers and has said nothing about cutting taxes to benefit business.

In any case, Burns said there is no need for a tax cut at the present time, partly because it could add to inflationary pressures and partly because he expects the economy to resume solid growth without one.

feeling of participation without their feeling that they were being co-opted."

Carter told the Democratic legislators he wants Congress to re-enact the Hoover Reorganization Act which, before it expired last year, gave the president the authority to reorganize the federal government subject only to congressional veto.

The Carter aide described the meeting with nine senators and seven House members during a news briefing under the ground rules that he not be identified by name.

Carter entered the meeting with a list of discussion topics written on a folded piece of paper. At the top of the list was government reorganization, but the aide said, "Clearly the topic that ran in and out of almost all the discussion was the economy."

Government reorganization was a topic Carter brought up frequently during his campaign, recounting the consolidation of Georgia government agencies he supervised as the state's governor and promising he would reorganize the federal bureaucracy if elected president.

His aide said specific legislative proposals were not brought up.

Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., expected to be the next House speaker, said Carter "will have 100 per cent cooperation from me."

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., retiring as the Senate Democratic leader, said, "If the meeting this afternoon is any indication of what lies ahead for this country...the omens are all good."

Tougher penalties urged in Medicaid fraud cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is being urged to consider severe jail terms for doctors, druggists and nursing home operators found guilty of taking part in the estimated billions of dollars in Medicaid fraud.

A New York state prosecutor told a Senate investigating committee Wednesday that his office uncovered evidence that nursing home operators were padding bills under the federal-state Medicaid program to pay for personal luxuries.

Charles Hynes, New York state special prosecutor for nursing homes, said his office found that nursing home operators treated themselves to mink coats, stereo equipment and paintings by such masters as Matisse and Renoir, claiming in bills to Medicaid that these were all legitimate business expenses.

It has been estimated that abuse and fraud in Medicaid, a federal-state program for the poor, and Medicare, which aids the elderly, cost taxpayers $3 billion to $4 billion a year.

Despite those figures, said Hynes and Samuel K. Skinner, U.S. attorney for Northern Illinois, virtually no health service offenders are ever sent to jail.

Skinner blamed the federal government in large part because the health insurance programs, which together cost about $40 billion a year, were launched with no tests or pilot projects.

Skinner also warned that "it would be

Nursing home blaze injures 7 in St. Louis

WINCHESTER, Mo. (AP) — A 65-year-old man was critically injured and six other men listed as serious after a fire broke out today in a cottage at the Manchester Nursing Home in west St. Louis County.

William Davis was admitted to County Hospital's surgical intensive care unit suffering from burns on the head and face and smoke inhalation, hospital officials said.

Eight other residents of the nursing home were taken to the hospital. Five were admitted in serious condition, suffering from either smoke inhalation or burns, while one was transferred to a nearby hospital's burn unit. Two were treated and released.

Sixteen patients were in the building when the fire started shortly before 6:30 a.m. Several were assisted out by nurses aides on duty in the cottage, and the rest were rescued by firemen wearing masks.

The patients in the burned cottage ranged from 27 to 94 years. A nurse at the home said many of them were nonambulatory because of leg amputations.

The remaining seven patients in the damaged cottage were transferred to other buildings on the nursing home grounds.

The home has a main building and four cottages, housing a total of 100 patients. Firemen from several county departments answered the first alarm.

provide for bail.

The incident apparently was the most serious racial outbreak at the base since 1970, when more than 30 black Marines stormed through a barracks occupied by men getting ready to ship out for Vietnam. It took several hours to restore order.

In April of the same year, military police used tear gas to quell interracial fighting at a base club and the barracks of a helicopter squadron.

That August, about a dozen men were injured when fighting broke out among black and white prisoners at the base correctional center.

Owen said problems at the base have been minor in recent years.

"The Marine Corps has a good record in race relations," he said. "Whenever you mix 50,000 people together, there is going to be some friction."

somebody is working in it. Better safety precautions since have been instituted, Thorp said.

"I knew I was going to die," Durham said. "I struggled, I yelled, but nobody heard me. Then I realized I had better save my energy."

Durham said he was nearly trampled and suffocated when the truck stopped at a weigh station. "I could feel somebody walking right on top of me there, but no one heard me yelling," he said.

Unknown to Durham, back at the lumber company Thorp had noticed him gone about 15 minutes after the truck pulled away. Realizing he might be in the truck, Thorp phoned fiber company officials, who contacted the driver by radio.

An ambulance awaited the truck at Longview, and workers dug and clawed Durham free. He escaped with only three cracked ribs and internal bleeding which has cleared up.

"I'm not religious, but I have second thoughts now," he said. "I know God had something to do with me making it."

suicidal to go ahead with national health insurance," which could cost up to $80 billion a year, until state and federal officials show they can rid Medicaid and Medicare of fraud.

Hynes said that "there still exists a climate in this country where the exploitation of old people is a respectable and risk-free profession."

He testified that the kickback scheme with suppliers worked this way: in order to get a nursing home contract, the supplier would pad its bill by charging for goods that were never delivered, and the nursing home operator would pass the phony bills along to the Medicaid program and end up with the extra cash.

Hynes, who obtained indictments earlier this week of 26 nursing home owners, employees and suppliers, told the Senate panel that up to half the 125 nursing homes in the New York City area may be involved in taking kickbacks from suppliers.

Skinner suggested appointment of state-federal task forces operating in cooperation with U.S. attorneys.

Free fishing age lowered five years

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Conservation Commission has lowered the age for free fishing for Missourians to 65 from the present 70, and increased the free fishing age for youngsters to 16 years instead of the present 15.

Missourians with proof of age, usually a driver's license, will be able to fish without buying a fishing permit after Jan. 1 if they are 65 or older, or if they have not passed their 16th birthday.

Those 65 or over, if they don't have a driver's license, may get a proof of age form from the Conservation Department.

Missouri voters recently approved a one-eighth cent sales tax proposal, which will increase the funding for the Conservation Department. Receipts from the sale of fishing and hunting permits had been used to finance the bulk of the department's operations in the past.

Boy, 11, shoots dog that attacked sister

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy may have saved his sister's life when he shot and killed a Doberman Pinscher that was mauling the girl, authorities say.

Police said the boy, Jamie Wright, fired three shots into the dog at point-blank range with his father's .22-caliber pistol when the animal attacked his 10-year-old sister, Vickie.

The girl was listed in fair condition at Midland Hospital on Wednesday following surgery for deep bites on both her legs.

"The dog would have killed my daughter," the children's mother said. "He would have killed her if Jamie didn't keep his head."

Anti-proposition effort placed around $750,000

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state's public counsel has estimated that Missouri electric companies chipped in three-quarters of a million dollars in a futile effort to defeat Proposition 1 on the Nov. 2 general election ballot.

The proposal, which was easily approved, prohibits electric firms from passing along to their customers the construction costs of utility plants before those plants begin providing power.

William Barvick, the public counsel, released a prepared statement here Wednesday listing the amounts he has determined through his own inquiries that utilities paid to oppose the law.

As public counsel, Barvick represents the public in utility rate cases before the Missouri Public Service Commission.

"While these contributions are permissible under Missouri law," Barvick said, "They should not be paid by consumers. We will make every effort to insure that the costs of this campaign are not assessed against ratepayers in future rate cases."

Barvick said Union Electric spent $379,000 in the campaign; Kansas City Power and Light Co., $129,400; Missouri Power and Light Co., $49,600; St. Joseph Power and Light Co., $35,000 and Missouri Edison, $15,800.

Sho-Me Power Corp. and Citizens Electric Corp. reported that they made no contributions, Barvick said. Although Arkansas-Missouri Power Co., Empire District Electric Co., Missouri Public Service Co. and Missouri Utilities did not respond to Barvick's questions, he estimated that those firms contributed a combined total of $140,800 based on an allocation agreement made by the participating companies.

In addition to the cash contribution, each of the participating utilities indicated that some company personnel worked to defeat Proposition 1 on company time. Union Electric indicated that company personnel spent more than 1,200 man-hours working in the campaign.

Missouri voters approved the proposition by a vote of 1,109,123 to 673,432 and it becomes a law as soon as the vote is certified by the secretary of state. The firm which currently pass along construction costs to customers will have 90 days from the certification time to halt the practice.

Nobel Prize winner to deliver lecture

CHICAGO (AP) — Saul Bellow, winner of this year's Nobel prize for literature, has been chosen to deliver the 1977 Jefferson lecture of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

His selection was announced Wednesday by the agency's chairman, Dr. Ronald S. Berman, at the University of Chicago.

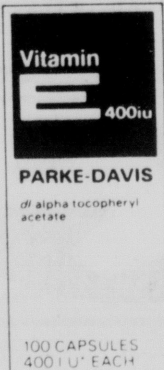

Bellow's theme will be the American writer and his material.

Pains develop after childbirth

Dear Dr. Lamb — Six months ago I had a baby. This is where my problem begins. I started having chest pains on my left side and my left arm seemed to go numb on me like it was asleep.

I went to one doctor every week for a few months. He said it was a strained muscle and gave me Motrin. I asked the druggist what they were for and he told me they were for arthritis.

I went to another doctor for his opinion and have been doctoring with him several months. He said it could be tension, but I never seem nervous or anything like that. I had a cardiogram, X rays and blood tests. They came out normal.

I was taking birth control pills so I stopped taking them but the problem is still there. It scares me a lot. I'm only 22 and have two children.

The doctor said my heart was beating too fast one week so that could be the problem with my arm. Do you have any suggestions?

Dear Reader — There is a rare condition in women after childbirth called post partum myocarditis. It is an inflammation of the heart muscle related to the pregnancy. The cause and many aspects of the illness remain obscure. However, these women have signs of heart involvement, including abnormal electrocardiograms. Your normal cardiogram and tests should rule out that condition.

Many young women seem to have a number of vague complaints after childbirth. The complaints are real enough but they don't fit the pattern of any specific disease. That is why they end up being diagnosed as nervous or being told it is a muscle spasm. You may be in that category. These may be related to subtle hormone changes.

I think the mechanism is similar to what we see after some illnesses, particularly those associated with long periods of inactivity. We call it neurocirculatory asthenia.

The heart may beat rapidly; sometimes there are extra beats. The individual may feel faint on standing or become breathless with mild exertion. When these symptoms are not associated with any physical findings or other evidence of a specific disease, it is usually functional.

A young mother with lots of responsibility may not be in shape for the amount she has to do. If that is the case, some help in coping with the day's demands often is a great aid. If the mother is out of shape physically, a gradual exercise program will help. The difficulty is in finding out whether the problem is associated with overwork or with lack of fitness. Usually the type of work a young mother has to do is time consuming and often nerve-racking but it may not be physically demanding like a game of tennis.

A good balance may be to get plenty of sleep one way or another and also get some time off to start a physical fitness program. Walking is a good start and you can gradually build up from there.

Incidentally although Motrin is used to relieve arthritis pain, it is also used to relieve pain from other conditions.

Therapist concentrates on the senses

Showing her how

Occupational therapist Cathie Trussell shows Amy Schroeder, 7, daughter of Mrs. Patty Schroeder, Route 3, an exercise to help develop her coordination skills. Two evening sessions a week are held to help parents understand their children's problems. The Virginia Flower Child Development and Rehabilitation Center's annual fund-raising drive will be held this weekend.

(Democrat-Capitol Photo)

By BRUCE KABAT
Democrat-Capitol Staff

On Monday and Tuesday evenings, in an otherwise deserted Virginia Flower Child Development and Rehabilitation Center, occupational therapist Cathie Trussell meets with a handful of parents and children to discuss sensory integration.

While the children play in the center's treatment room, Miss Trussell lectures on topics such as the tactile (touch) system and visual perception. The children have problems — varying in degree — with how they receive, process and respond to sensory information.

The lectures and discussions are part of a new eight week program at the therapy center, designed to acquaint parents with ways to help their children in the home environment.

"I was dissatisfied with the half-hour or hour conferences we were having with the parents during the day," Miss Trussell says. "They were not getting everything they needed to know in those sessions."

To help overcome that obstacle, she developed the evening lecture and discussion series, which gives parents an opportunity to discuss home therapy techniques and their children's progress.

The parents of seven children are involved in the evening sessions, and although turnout has varied from week to week, Miss Trussell says the experience has been valuable.

"The sessions have helped in communication with the parents," she says. "It's helpful to get the parent's views — you can learn certain things to look for in the children."

programs for the kids — the program is designed to meet individual needs.

Miss Trussell meets with parents of children younger than age nine on Monday nights, and with parents of older children on Tuesday nights. After each lecture, the class moves to the treatment room, where Miss Trussell demonstrates sensory stimulation techniques discussed that night. Following the lecture on the tactile system, she asked the children to touch different grades of sandpaper to determine which was coarsest. The children also tried to name objects they touched, but could not see.

The program includes one session of testing to evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of each child.

Miss Trussell says a major reward of the night program is getting parents "more willing to help their children." One child's parents "fought tooth and nail" with the center, claiming their child did not need therapy, she says. After attending a few sessions, however, they gradually lost their hostility and wanted to help the child.

Some of the children have behavior problems at home or in school, and talking with parents helps the therapist learn more about the problem, she says. "As you talk to them, you learn more about the child."

Mrs. Patty J. Schroeder, Route 3, whose seven-year-old daughter Amy has a mild sensory integration disability, says the evening sessions have been "invaluable."

"I wasn't aware that I could do some of these things at home. I thought I had to wait until the next visit to the center," she says. "Cathie's lectures have given me a better grasp of the things we're working on with my daughter."

Four face Clay County drug charges

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo. (AP) — Four persons were arraigned on drug charges Wednesday in connection with a series of raids and arrests in Excelsior Springs and nearby Kansas City. About 78 pounds of marijuana was confiscated, police said.

Those arraigned in Clay County Magistrate Court at Liberty were: John R. Flanagan, 27, Clifton W. Dawson, 24, and Mrs. Pamela Dawson, 23, Dawson's wife, all of Kansas City, and Chester L. Arnett, 37, of Excelsior Springs.

Flanagan and the Dawsons are each charged with possession of more than 35 grams of marijuana, and Arnett on three counts of sale of marijuana. Dawson, in addition, is charged with possession of amphetamines.

Bond was set at $2,000 for Mrs. Dawson, $2,000 for Flanagan, $4,000 for Dawson and $15,000 for Arnett. Preliminary hearings for all four were scheduled for Nov. 30. Eight persons originally were arrested, and four were released, three without charges, police said.

OSHA runs into the Fourth Amendment

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Some of the pleasantest stories that come along have to do with combats between David and Goliath — especially when the combats turn out according to the book. Word comes from Albuquerque of such a struggle. David won; and Goliath is much annoyed.

Kilpatrick

Cast in the role of David, in this particular drama, is a 100 per cent free and independent small businessman, Robert Bruce Hertzler by name. The part of Goliath, as you may have surmised, is played by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). Thanks to a three-judge federal court, Hertzler has succeeded in bringing the giant to his knees.

The case prompts a word of advice to every businessman, small or large, who objects to the visits of OSHA inspectors: Tell 'em to get a warrant! If the inspectors refuse to get a warrant, throw the bums politely out.

That is what happened on a February day in 1975, when two OSHA inspectors, John K. Parsons and Rodney Prows, approached the Sandia Die and Cartridge Company. This is a small plant, employing only five persons, engaged in the manufacture of cardboard boxes and the reloading of cartridges. The OSHA gumshoes wanted to get a look around. Donna Hertzler, president of the company, met them at the door.

"Where's your warrant?" she asked. They didn't have one. "Sorry, boys," she said; and closed the door.

The New Mexico area director for OSHA was much wroth. He went to U.S. Magistrate Robert W. McCoy, read him the law creating OSHA and obtained a warrant. Whereupon, in April, the inspectors returned. The Hertzlers, undaunted, said they would challenge the validity of the warrant. They retained counsel and got a preliminary injunction.

The mills of the law grind slowly. It wasn't until late August of this year that a three-judge federal court unanimously upheld the Hertzlers' challenge. The Fourth Amendment, said the court, demands a showing of "probable cause" before a warrant may validly issue. No such showing had been made. The warrant was therefore void.

This is at least the second such ruling against OSHA. In a Texas case, a couple of years ago, involving the Gibson's Products Company, a virtually identical decree came down. Meanwhile, however, in a Georgia case, a federal court ruled the other way; in Georgia, the authority of OSHA to enter private premises, without a warrant, was upheld.

This judicial conflict ultimately will have to be resolved at the Supreme Court level, but the reasoning in New Mexico was so cogent that defenders of personal liberty are bound to be encouraged. What the Fourth Amendment guarantees is that "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated." The amendment says that warrants may issue only upon a showing of probable cause, "particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."

To operate within the plain boundaries of the Fourth Amendment would impose no unreasonable burden upon OSHA inspectors. Such a procedure would require no more than a sworn statement, presumably from some anxious employee, that a dangerous condition exists at such-and-such a plant. Thus armed with probable cause, inspectors would encounter no difficulty in obtaining valid search warrants.

Yes, this would inconvenience the bureaucracy. Yes, it would slow the inspectors down. But the slow and constitutional way is infinitely the better way. The Fourth Amendment dates from Magna Carta; it is among the most glorious provisions of the Constitution; it protects even the lowliest citizen from the hobbled intrusions of the omnipotent state.

The Department of Labor naturally will appeal the Hertzler decision. It will be many months before the constitutional issue can be finally resolved. Meanwhile, enough law has been written at the district court level to hearten other impertinent Davids who may wish to take on Goliath. Tyrants can be toppled. Nothing more is required than the will to try.

Art Buchwald

Jimmy's big list of guests

WASHINGTON—The word has just been passed that Jimmy Carter is inviting 300,000 to 400,000 campaign workers and friends to his inauguration in Washington, D.C. Naturally, those of us who live in the capital are thrilled to hear that so many people will be coming here on Jan. 20. There won't be anything like it since Woodstock.

Buchwald

I believe Mr. Carter's decision to send out so many invitations proves he doesn't know Washington at all. We really don't have that many hotels in the area. We can handle an American Bankers Convention, and we just manage to accommodate the Daughters of the American Revolution when they come to town every spring. But when you talk about housing and feeding 300,000 or 400,000 people from all parts of the country, Mr. Carter is going to have a problem.

Even if he uses the indoor swimming pool and the Oval Office for sleeping quarters, I can't see him able to put up more than 10,000 people at the White House. Since the weather forecasters are predicting a very cold winter, not too many supporters will want to camp on the Mall or the Capitol steps.

Of course, Mr. Carter could open up the federal buildings and invite people to sleep there, but that would mean displacing thousands of federal employees who are sleeping in them already.

There may be an effort on the part of the Carter Inaugural Committee to ask Washington residents to take people into their homes. I'm not sure how what kind of reaction they would get.

I called up Sen. Bob Dole and asked him if he would be willing to take in any guests coming to the Carter inauguration, and he hung up on me. Henry Kissinger said that, unfortunately, Nancy was redecorating their house in Georgetown, and they wouldn't have any room. The Fords said they would be packing at the time and couldn't take anyone in, and Teddy Kennedy told me he would be happy to put someone up, but, unfortunately, he has only one bedroom.

Even if we could find rooms for everybody, the question is how could we feed them? There are only 15 Kentucky Fried Chicken stands in all of Washington, 18 McDonald's hamburger outlets, 17 Burger Chops and 12 Hot Shoppes.

The only experience Washington has had with handling so many people at one time was when the veterans of World War I came to town during the Hoover administration to protest their lack of bonuses, and Gen. MacArthur was ordered to drive them out of town.

In recent years we've dealt with mobs—during the Nixon administration thousands of students came to Washington to protest the Vietnamese war. Atty. Gen. John Mitchell handled the problem by rounding everyone up, arresting them and locking them up in the R.F.K. Stadium, which can't handle more than 51,000 people at one time.

Whether Mr. Carter would want to go to this extreme to handle his guests is something I don't know.

We admire the President-elect for wanting so many people to come to his inaugural, but we question his judgment in not thinking through what it will do to the town. We have about four places that can handle inaugural balls, so the majority of people will have to dance in the streets, possibly in the snow.

I'm not predicting trouble, but I believe Mr. Carter's first act as President may have to be to call out the National Guard on Jan. 20 and declare Washington a disaster area.

Every president has a right to have the inauguration of his choice, but Mr. Carter may have bitten off more than he can chew if everyone he invites to his swearing-in agrees to come.

If the President-elect decides to go ahead with it, I think he should pardon John Mitchell and make him chairman of his Inaugural Committee. Mitchell may not have cleared the streets of Washington legally, but at least he got the job done.

Whiteman gears up

The Air Force's announcement of a $94.8 million contract to the Boeing Co. means that another major modification project will get underway at Whiteman Air Force Base next year, the first in a decade.

Whiteman will be one of two Minuteman bases that will have a "force improvement program" designed to make its 150 missile silos less vulnerable to enemy attack. This will involve numerous modifications to the missiles' suspension system, new supporting floors and improvements in associated mechanical and electrical systems.

The first step in the modification is now going on with the construction of a $1.3 million building at Whiteman that will serve as a base of operations for the silo work. That job, incidentally, was awarded to a Tipton contractor.

Air Force spokesmen say they expect the full program to begin about a year from now. The modification will take around two years to complete, it was reported.

The "hardening" of Minuteman silos is in response to the development by the Soviet Union in recent years of new types of intercontinental ballistic missiles. These large weapons are clearly designed for first strikes against U.S. missile silos, hence the need for increased protection for those silos.

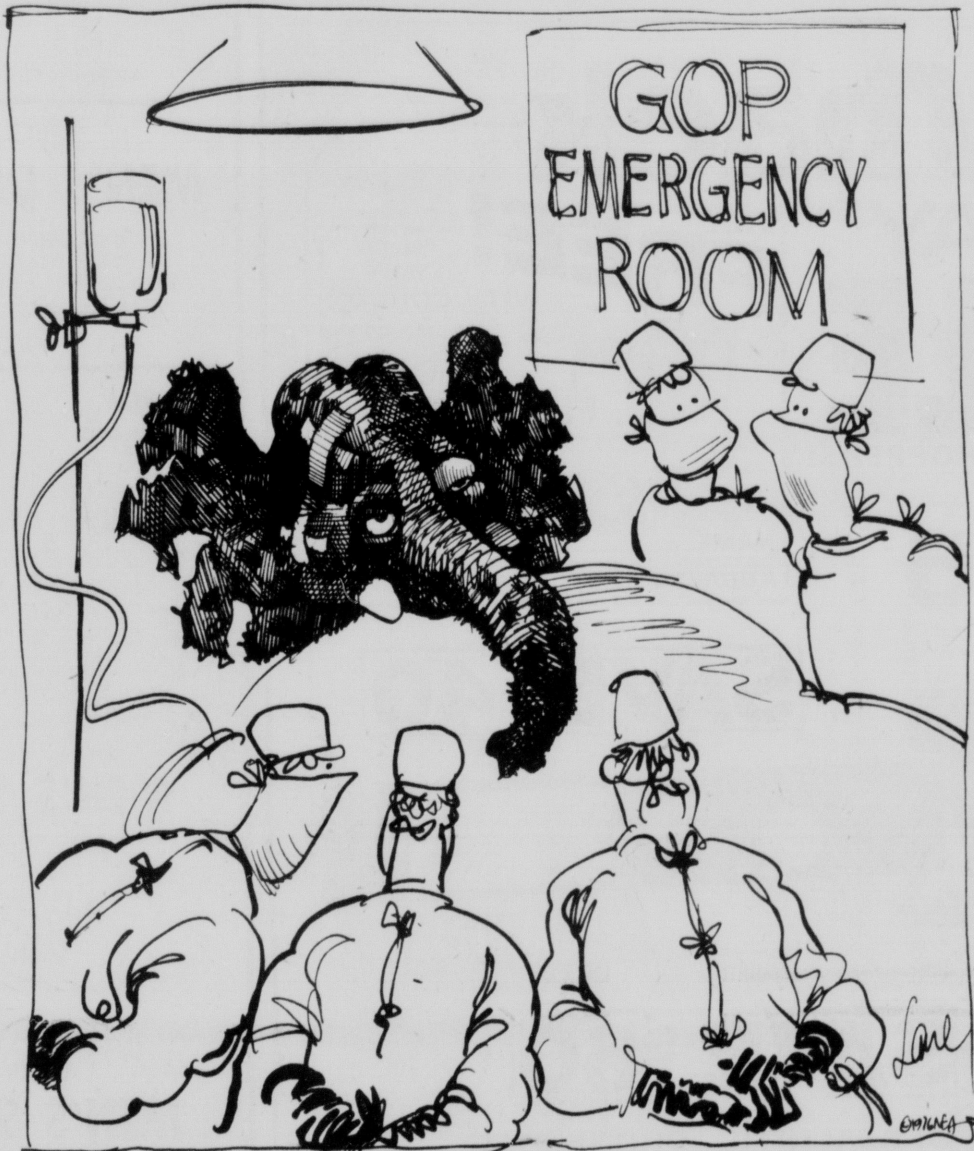

Obviously, the Boeing work will have a significant effect on area towns. Now is not too soon to begin planning for this influx.

Mail runs in black

Now here's news: the Postal Service finished the quarter ending last September with a $15 million surplus. The unexpected turn of events is credited to higher mail volume and the effects of personnel attrition.

But just as one swallow doesn't make a summer, neither does one quarter in the black mean the Postal Service is suddenly self-sufficient. It has racked up more than $3 billion in deficits since 1971, and that problem will not change overnight.

Still, it's a welcome switch from what we've been hearing from the Postal Service.

"We've already got a bionic man, a bionic woman and a bionic boy, so why not . . . ?"

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — In the name of civilization, white Americans have pushed the Indians off their hunting grounds and herded them into reservations. The only wilderness left open to them is Alaska's vast, frozen tundra and timberland.

By act of Congress, this last open territory was granted to them in 1971. The Alaskan Indians, Eskimos and Aleuts were declared to be the rightful owners of Alaska's wilderness.

Their ancestors had roamed this harsh country for centuries. The Supreme Court supported their right to the region in an 1837 decision. Then in 1969, a giant consortium of oil companies, known as Alyeska, prepared to build the Alaska pipeline.

The company, in clearing the right of way for the pipeline, found the authorities unsure over who owned the Alaskan wilderness. The 1971 act was supposed to have settled the issue.

But the federal bureaucracy, as we've pointed out in the past, doesn't always pay attention to the laws that Congress passes. The Interior Department has shown a decided reluctance to implement the act.

The department has been receiving pressure from the same selfish white interests that have succeeded in subverting Indian treaties in the past. The big game hunters and recreational interests fear, not without cause, that the natives will limit the hunting on their land.

Business and political circles are also uneasy over the economic power the natives will wield if they finally gain control of their vast acreage. Already, 12 federally funded, native corporations have been set up to determine how best to develop the land.

Merry-go-round

Indians in Alaska pushed off lands

The Interior Department, therefore, has been obstructing the transfer of the Alaskan wilderness to its native owners. Congress gave Interior the authority, for example, to reserve certain easements. The purpose was to provide the general public with rights of way across native territory.

The department seized upon this provision to issue massive, blanket easements on the entire coastline of Alaska and around all inland rivers and lakes. The dispute over this action has become bogged down in litigation.

It's an old, sad story. Time and again, the federal government has signed treaties with the Indians, which guaranteed millions of acres but which delivered only thousands.

At this moment, protected white interests are illegally draining off the life-giving water of tribes in various parts of the country — under the eyes of a government that systematically welshes on its commitments.

DICTATORS BEWARE: With Jimmy Carter in the White House, several Democratic congressmen will seek next year to strip tinhorn Latin American dictators of their military aid.

The group, led by Rep. Edward Koch, D-N.Y., claims that the military governments face no threats from external enemies and are using American weapons to oppress their own people.

Carter has indicated that he will consider human rights in dealing with foreign nations. Koch expects to have his support, which he will solicit after the new foreign policy team is appointed.

Koch, a key member of the appropriations subcommittee that dispenses foreign aid, succeeded earlier this year in pushing through legislation embargoing military aid to Uruguay. He cited Uruguay's use of U.S.-supplied weapons to torment its own people.

Next year, he plans to concentrate on the military outlays to such repressive governments as Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Nicaragua. There are a "lot of Uruguays in Latin America," he told us.

WATCH ON WASTE — The Federal Trade Commission was cited in a recent congressional study as the second most effective federal agency. It is effective not only in doing the taxpayers' work it turns out, but also in spending the taxpayers' money.

The FTC concluded a regional directors' conference in Nashville, for example, with a sumptuous smorgasbord of Chinese delicacies and booze. The $900 bill was picked up by the taxpayers.

When the bill arrived at the FTC's finance office, an outraged civil servant, Herb Nelson, refused to approve it. He was overruled by the agency's executive director, R.T. McNamar.

The former chairman, Lewis Engman, didn't like the reception on his office TV set. So the FTC bought him a color set for $500.

A lowlier FTC employee, Gerald H. Smith, was put in charge of a special field station in Detroit. Yet at the same time, he was carried on the rolls of the University of Michigan as a fulltime student.

Smith used an air-conditioned government car to commute the 40 miles between his office in Detroit and the university in Ann Arbor. He submitted vouchers claiming he had driven the car thousands of miles on government business.

Budget officials haven't been contacted

Senator tells Teasdale to move on budget

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The chairman of the state Senate Appropriations Committee has expressed some concern over the fact that Gov.-elect Joseph Teasdale has made no visible effort to begin work on the $2.7 billion state budget for next year.

"It's time we do start moving on the budget," Sen. Norman Merrell said on Wednesday in releasing a letter to Teasdale in which he provided "some of my ideas that could serve as guidelines for the 1977-78 state budget."

"I'm a little concerned. We should have something done before too long," Merrell said. "We don't have a penny-ante budget any more."

State budget officials have said they have yet to have any major contact with Teasdale or his aides concerning the budget, and Gov. Christopher

S. Bond, whom Teasdale defeated in the Nov. 2 election, has said he has been unable to contact Teasdale on the matter.

On another issue, Merrell, who will become the Senate president pro tem in January, said he believed the state should abandon efforts to build medium security prisons in the urban areas and begin immediate construction of the facilities in mid-Missouri on land owned by the state.

While saying he was not opposed to an urban location, he said the problems in finding an urban site that have delayed construction for nearly 18 months could be solved by using land now owned by the state.

Merrell also recommended that the Conservation Department should take over full financing of the state forestry program and parks and recreation program since its budget will be more than doubled through a recently approved constitutional amendment.

That amendment calls for the assessment of a one-eighth cent sales tax beginning next July with the proceeds earmarked for use by the Conservation Department. The forestry program is now partially funded by general revenue and the parks program, under the Department of Natural Resources, is funded through general revenue and user fees.

"The net general revenue savings resulting from these two recommendations would be approximately $5 million," Merrell said. Backers of the tax boost wanted the additional funding to be used for a major land acquisition program proposed by the Conservation Department.

In his letter to the governor-elect, Merrell outlined several items that he said should be given major consideration in the governor's budget message and that can be implemented without any tax increase.

Among those are immediate funding for the newly created Missouri Elderly and Handicapped Transportation Assistance Program and the expanded public defender program. Those expenditures along with other emergency funding requests will total about $25 million, Merrell said, although state budget officials say they expect emergency funding requests to total only about $16 million.

Program is explained to club

An explanation of the local community block grant development program, by director Tom Delph, highlighted the weekly meeting Tuesday of the Sedalia Noon Optimist Club at the Bothwell Hotel.

With the $275,000 in federal funds received for this fiscal year, Delph explained, housing rehabilitation projects in pre-designated impact areas are being performed, local parks are to be improved and other worthwhile projects are being accomplished.

Under the housing rehabilitation plan, qualified local residents can have approved home-refurbishing work completely funded under the program. In certain cases involving persons with somewhat higher incomes, partial grants are available where, for example, the homeowner purchases a furnace or other major appliance and the block grant program pays for its installation.

It was announced at the meeting that the club's annual Christmas tree selling drive will begin the weekend of Dec. 4. Ladies night will be held at 7 p.m. Nov. 30 at the State Fair Motor Inn.

Club president Bob Settles presided at the meeting and Dr. K.L. Holdren gave the invocation.

Dixy Lee Ray plans bashes

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Governor-elect Dixy Lee Ray has told her aides to plan for a statewide round of inauguration bashes.

The traditional Olympia area ball will be held Jan. 12. Tickets are $35 a couple or $17.50 apiece — as compared with $25 a couple four years ago.

Other parties will be held in Vancouver, Aberdeen, Port Angeles, Bellingham, Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma and southeastern Washington. In most cases, the tickets will be $25 a couple.

On the nights where two parties are scheduled, Miss Ray and her entourage will use an airplane to get from one town to the other.

Ranchhands come across body of boy in Wyoming

TEN SLEEP, Wyo. (AP) — Two ranchhands on Wednesday stumbled upon a badly decomposed body authorities identified as 4-year-old Ronnie Rea, whose disappearance from his parents' home southeast of here aroused concern across the nation.

Silverio and Jun Maya found the partially buried body about three miles northwest of the Rea family home, located in the rugged foothills of the Big Horn Mountains 12 miles southeast of here. The boy had disappeared Oct. 11.

Washakie County Sheriff James Warila said he doesn't suspect foul play in the death of the boy, who was legally blind without his glasses and could not talk. The sheriff said the boy's body would be transported to Casper Thursday for an autopsy.

Warila said the boy, when found, was fully clad in the short-sleeved shirt and trousers he last was seen wearing. He said the child's glasses were missing.

The sheriff said the body was found in an area covered extensively by searchers on horseback, but not on foot.

Authorities used search planes, helicopters equipped with special equipment, tracking dogs and 100 searchers in an exhaustive search. Persons claiming mystical powers also offered their assistance in finding the boy, but nothing worked.

Officials formally disbanded their search for the boy eight days after he disappeared. The area had been blanketed by snow, buffeted by strong winds and chilled by temperatures that dipped into the teens while the search was on.

Miller union strong

NEW YORK (AP) — As bargaining leverage, players in the National Basketball Association had the American Basketball Association; the National Football League and the World Football League; the National Hockey League has the World Hockey Association.

Major league baseball has Marvin Miller.

Almost singlehandedly, Miller has raised the average salary of major league players to over $50,000, and he's done that even though baseball didn't have a competing league.

When Miller became executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association in 1966, the employer-employee relationship was "semi-paternalistic," he said. "It was more typical of a century earlier in other industries."

In 1966, the players association had no dues structure, no checkoff arrangement, no office and no staff. Contrast that with today. The association has 100 per cent membership and is the strongest sports union in the country.

In 1947, the players got their first minimum salary, $5,000, and their first weekly expense allowance, $25. In 1966, the minimum salary was $6,000 and the weekly allowance was still $25.

The players association and the owners reached agreement on a four-year contract, which calls for a minimum salary of $19,000 for 1977 and $21,000 for 1978 and 1979. The expense allowance is $24.50 per day.

But perhaps the most important change in the contract is that a player can become a free agent after six years of major league service. As a holdover from an arbitrator's decision, players not signing 1976 contracts could become free agents at the end of this season.

There is no doubt that Miller, his ideas and leadership have meant millions of dollars to his players, the importance of which he doesn't downgrade.

"But as much as it is, it may not be the most important thing we have done," he said.

"When you've changed the basis of a relationship so that it's now contractual between equal parties; when you've changed the concept of player punishment without just cause; when you've brought in an impartial arbitrator rather than the paid employee of the owners for grievances, then you have raised the dignity of the players.

"And that's something that will last forever."

Kapstein strikes again

Free agent outfielder Joe Rudi (third from the left) became the property of the California Angels Wednesday, when his attorney Jerry Kapstein (right) worked out a contract with the club. Kapstein has now signed five of the top free agents to Major League clubs. Kapstein worked out deals for Bert Campaneris and Dave Cash with Texas and Montreal respectively Wednesday. Pictured with Rudi and Kapstein are Rudi's wife, Sharon, and Harry Dalton, general manager of the Angels.

More to Audubon than watching

By JACK SCHICHT
Democrat-Capitol Staff Writer

Mention the Audubon Society and most people conjure up thoughts of college professors, engineers and housewives peering through binoculars at the crack of dawn to catch a glimpse of a pileated woodpecker.

But there's more to it than that. A lot more, says Mrs. Freeda Swope, vice president of the local Mosage Chapter.

"When people say Audubon, they think of birds," says Mrs. Swope. "Our emphasis is on conservation . . . The group activities and outings are something else, like icing on the cake."

The chapter was formed in March last year and serves about seven counties in the area roughly bordered on the north and south by the Missouri and Osage Rivers. Meetings are held at the Farm and Home Building here due to Sedalia's central location.

About 30 to 35 persons attend the quarterly meetings on a regular basis. Mrs. Swope, a Sedalian, says, although about 100 members of the national Audubon Society live in the area and receive the chapter's monthly newsletter, "The Audubon Liaison." Towns represented include Concordia, Prairie Home, Harrisonville, Clinton, Holden, Knob Noster, Warrensburg, Warsaw and Kingsville.

Perhaps the group's main goal, says Mrs. Swope, is to "actually be instrumental in getting to people pertinent information on legislative issues . . . information that is true and honest" and urging letters to senators and representatives.

More often than not, the group focuses on regional or national conservation issues — Meramec Dam, Trimble Wildlife Area, Alton Dam project, "Design for Conservation" — with the emphasis on preservation. But local problems aren't overlooked either.

"National issues come down to the local level," says Mrs. Swope. "For example, take the problem of erosion. There are areas along Turkey and Muddy Creeks where trees have been stripped from the banks, taken out for pulpwood.

"Take a look after a big rain, look at the erosion . . . It's happening right under our noses. It's something we're living with on a day-to-day basis."

At present, the group is relying on its newsletter (which Mrs. Swope edits) and word of mouth to spread its message.

The club finances its newsletter through a rebate from the national organization. Yearly membership is $15 for an individual or $18 for a family, and this includes a subscription to the society's magazine, "Audubon," which is published six times a year.

Mrs. Swope says the local chapter's activities have included bird watching in Knob Noster State Park and near Marshall, a float trip on the Niangua River and a field trip to Friendly Prairie.

The chapter presently owns no clubhouse or property but has hopes of acquiring land some day and possibly constructing a nature center or trail within the area.

Mrs. Swope says the Mosage chapter is only one of a small number in Missouri, with other chapters located in Columbia, Springfield, Joplin, Kansas City and St. Louis.

The group's quarterly meetings usually consist of a filmstrip or speaker. Last month's featured speaker was Harry Gregory, education curator of the Swope Park Zoo in Kansas City, who spoke on "A View of East Africa." Other programs have been devoted to the prairie ecosystem, game birds, wild rivers and forests.

To join the local chapter, a person need only send his individual or family membership to the national society and start attending the meetings, Mrs. Swope says. Persons seeking additional information should contact her at night at 826-0518.

Besides Mrs. Swope, other officers are Dr. William Cole, Smithton, president; William Claycomb, Hughesville, treasurer; and Mrs. Larry Atkins, Holden, secretary.

Depth, quickness keys for Porter, S-C Tigers

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

"I can't express anything but complete optimism," says David Porter, head coach of Smith-Cotton's basketball Tigers.

"I know every coach in America says about the same thing, but if you're not optimistic about what you're trying to do you shouldn't be doing it," he added earlier this week before one of the Bengals' practice sessions.

The Tigers, coming off an 11-15 season last year and the Class 4A regional champion, return only one starter and two lettermen as the team heads toward its season opener Monday in the Buffalo Tournament against the host team.

"One of the big assets we should have this year is depth," says Porter, who is 20-30 as the Tigers' head coach over the last two seasons.

"We have 10 or 12 players who can all contribute in the various situations we anticipate."

The lone returning starter and one of the two lettermen is 6-7 senior center Skip McGuire. McGuire, a member of the S-C varsity since he was a sophomore, averaged nearly 10 points per game as a junior and promises to be one of the top rebounders in the Central Missouri Conference.

"He worked very hard during the off-season," says Porter of McGuire. "He is bigger (weight), his quickness has improved because his coordination has finally caught up with his growth."

There is no doubt in Porter's mind that McGuire will fit into the Tigers' plans when the team needs size and when the club goes for more quickness in the lineup.

The only other returning letterman is 5-10 senior David Hathaway, who like David Albright, Brian Buckner, Eddie Kitchen, Sam Hargrave and to some extent Dallas Smith trail most of the other players in Porter's early-season plans because of participating in football.

Inexperience is the biggest question the Tigers face early in the year — something not uncommon to many other coaches. Porter puts it this way, "Our seniors will play a big part in our program . . . they will have to . . . they (the seniors) should give us the stability (size) we need, while our juniors can provide the quickness."

Right now two of Porter's seniors are ailing. Center-forward Kevin Buller has been battling the flu and Sam Downs is slowed by an ankle injury.

In addition to McGuire,

Hathaway, Downs, Hargrave and Buller, Porter's other seniors on the squad are Mark Waters, Mike Schwartz and Mark Benson.

"Benson (a 6-4 forward) has really been a pleasant surprise," remarks Porter. "He's probably the strongest fundamental player we've got . . . he's a good shooter . . . and he's grown a foot in the past two years. In the past he's played at guard, but because of his growth we've moved him inside," Porter said.

McGuire and Benson will probably get the call in Monday night's opener in the tournament.

Porter really is all smiles when he talks about his group of juniors, especially James Smith, who will be the Tigers' point guard. "He does a good job for us running the offense," says Porter of Smith, a 5-9 junior.

The other guard spot, at least early in the season, seems to have been won by Dallas Smith, a 6-0 junior. "He's much improved over last year. His size is a benefit and like James (Smith) he is quick."

Although not as quick as McGuire, Smith, Smith and Benson, Waters (6-2) gives the Tigers a good perimeter shooter on the front line. "He is consistent in all areas, but he is not the quickest forward we could use," says Porter. "But here again, we are going to adjust our lineup at times

Ken Boyer to manage Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Ken Boyer, the former star third baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals, has been picked to manage the Rochester Red Wings of the AAA International League next year, the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle reported in Thursday's editions.

While Boyer declined comment from his home in Hermann, Mo., the newspaper said other sources confirmed he will manage the Baltimore Orioles' baseball farm club.

An announcement is expected later this week.

Boyer, 45, retired in 1969 after 15 years in the majors, including 11 with St. Louis. He was named to the National League All-Star team seven times, was the league's Most Valuable Player in 1964, and was a Golden Glove winner five times. He had a .287 career batting average, with 282 home runs.

(in relation to quickness and size) to our opponents and their abilities."

Possibly Porter's quickest player is Eddie Jenkins, a 6-2 junior. However, his complete transcript from Northwest (St. Louis) High School has not been received and his eligibility is currently unknown.

The two remaining Tigers on Porter's roster are a pair of junior centers Joe McGuire (6-6) and 6-4 David Braverman. Braverman, like Downs, has been slowed by an ankle injury. McGuire was a promising freshman, but skipped last season in favor of swimming.

Looking at his plans, Porter said he hopes to run and press. "Right now, we're looking for the right people to do these things," he says.

"I'm not sure who we will start against Buffalo Monday. It all depends. We've got a few more days of practice and I want to look over the players and gear the ones I start to the particular situation."

One of the highlights of the Smith-Cotton home schedule this year will be the S-C Classic, a four-team round-robin affair in early December.

The four teams in the tournament include the host Tigers, Central Missouri Conference rival Columbia Hickman, Springfield Glendale and Kansas City Lillis.

Each of the teams will play each other during the three-night affair, Dec. 7, 10-11. S-C will meet Lillis in one of the games opening night. Porter will be facing Tom Beer's Fighting Irish. Beer coached at Sacred Heart High School a few years ago.

Also on the S-C slate this season are strong, non-loop foes St. Joseph Central, Shawnee Mission (Kan.) South, Truman and Raytown South.

"We are proud of our schedule . . . we try not to pick on the easy ones," Porter concluded.

Neb. domination continues

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mighty Nebraska, although locked in a five-way tie with the common folk for first place in the Big Eight football race, continues to dominate conference statistics.

The Cornhuskers pace three defensive and one offensive department, while Iowa State leads in two categories and Missouri and Oklahoma are tops in one each.

Say Matthews going to Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves were expected to announce the signing of free agent outfielder Gary Matthews at a news conference today.

A spokesman for the National League club all but confirmed a published report Wednesday that Matthews, who played out his option with the San Francisco Giants last season, would join the Braves.

The spokesman, Bob Hope, said a copyrighted story in the San Francisco Examiner "might be a helluva guess."

Matthews, 26, batted .279 last season with 20 home runs and 84 runs batted in.

ISU coach rehired

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Football Coach Earle Bruce was given a three-year extension on his current contract by unanimous vote of the Iowa State University Athletic Council at its meeting Wednesday.

in cage loop

Jerry Johnson of Stags in the men's city recreation basketball league Wednesday night tossed in 31 points to lead the Stags past Michelob, 89-71. Johnny Dove scored 15 for the losers.

In other league action, Schlitz swamped State Fair Restaurant, 76-43. Mike Proffitt netted 14 for Schlitz; Lloyd Kindle had 13 for State Fair.

Oilers of Missouri scored a 62-55 victory over Western Auto. Gary Ackerman of the Oilers was the game's leading scorer with 16, while Jim Marcum and Terry Homan tossed in 12 each for Western Auto.

Doug Dickman scored 23 points for Millers, but it wasn't enough to overcome Wilson Foods, which triumphed, 68-57. Jim Boss had 15 for individual honors for Wilson.

Dorsett favors oranges, but Sugar is sweet

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Top-ranked Pittsburgh will be celebrating New Year's in New Orleans, having decided it can best further its quest for college football's national championship by taking on Southeastern Conference titlist Georgia in the Sugar Bowl.

While bowl bids may not be tendered until 6 p.m., EST. Saturday, the seniors and starters on the 10-0 Pitt team have already met and decided the Sugar Bowl looked sweet to them.

And if the No. 1 team in the country — with a super attraction like running back Tony Dorsett — wants the Sugar Bowl, you can rest assured the Sugar Bowl will want Pitt. Interestingly, Dorsett says he had favored the Orange Bowl, but "majority rules," so he'll head for New Orleans.

In other developments as teams jockey for position in the bowl lineup, unbeaten

Maryland appears headed for a clash with the Southwest Conference champion in the Cotton Bowl, defending national champion Oklahoma is a likely opponent for Western Athletic Conference king Wyoming in the Fiesta Bowl and thrice-beaten Alabama is expected to be invited to the Liberty Bowl.

That decision made a happy man of Georgia Coach Vince Dooley, whose club earned an automatic trip to New Orleans as the SEC champion and now has a chance to knock off No. 1.

"I am pleased the No. 1-ranked team has decided to accept the Sugar Bowl invitation, if offered," Dooley said.

And lest there be any doubt about it, Sugar Bowl officials in New Orleans confirmed they planned to invite Pitt.

The Big Eight champion will be one half of the Orange Bowl matchup, but Pitt's decision leaves the other spot up for grabs.

Maryland, 10-0 and tied for the No. 6 ranking, will reportedly be invited to journey to the Cotton Bowl in Dallas — its first bowl bid in 21 years — but only if the Terps close out their season with a victory over Virginia Saturday.

Two of this weekend's games will clear up the bowl picture considerably—the Big Ten title clash between Ohio State and Michigan and the Pacific-8 showdown between UCLA and Southern Cal.

The winners, of course, will meet in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif., the granddaddy of them all. But it looks like the losers will also see some bowl action.

The Fiesta Bowl is expected to invite Oklahoma, while Executive Director Bud Dudley of the Liberty Bowl says: "Alabama is certainly high on our list."

The Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, meanwhile, is reportedly interested in luring Texas A&M to be its home team.

Deer kill so far stands at 23,550

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The total Missouri deer kill for the first five days of the gun season was reported at 23,550 Wednesday by the state Conservation Department.

Gasconade County led all counties with 1,453, followed by Osage with 906 and Franklin with 809.

Hunting was light Wednesday, the department said, with a kill of 1,405 reported.

Niland: fixing games not hard

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles' offensive guard John Niland testified in a federal court suit that he believes it would be relatively easy to fix a National Football League game.

The 32-year-old Niland told the U.S. District Court Wednesday that he personally did not know of any attempts to fix any NFL games, but predicted mounting pressures on game officials and players by gambling interests if legalized sports betting were added to illegal operations.

His testimony came on the third day of an NFL suit to halt Delaware's Scoreboard Lottery which offers the first state-operated sports betting in the nation.

Niland was among a parade of witnesses the NFL has produced who predicted that Delaware's sports game and others that might follow would compound and aggravate problems caused by illegal sports betting.

William Sullivan, president of the New England Patriots, told the court that he probably would sell his franchise immediately if gamblers filled his Foxboro, Mass., stadium.

Sullivan testified that his security people indicated angry gamblers may have played a part in a serious post-game disturbance Oct. 18, when the Patriots beat the New York Jets 41-7.

Sullivan and Niland were part of a star-studded group of witnesses, which earlier included NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who has predicted dire consequences for pro sports if games like Delaware's Scoreboard Lottery become widespread.

Although Nevada offers legal sports betting, Rozelle told the court, earlier this week, it doesn't pose the same threat as Delaware's games.

The Nevada betting is privately run but state-licensed. Montana also offers a less direct type of privately-run sports-related gambling.

MCCORMICK

GOLD LABEL

The spirits of seasons past

Holidays past... seasons to be thankful.
Seasons to be remembered... time and again.
With McCormick. A part of Missouri and Kansas history and tradition since 1856. A tradition carried on by the oldest continuously active distillery in the United States. Located on the Missouri-Kansas border... where history is still being made.

This holiday, make it a McCormick Season... with a present from the past. McCormick Gold Label

McCormick Gold Label Straight Bourbon, 6 Years Old, 86 Proof, Distilled and Bottled by McCormick Distilling Company, Weston (pop 1076), Missouri

The student counted his winners before playing to trick one. There were eight top-card tricks and just one extra club trick would give him game and rubber. He ducked the first heart on general principles, but had to win the second in dummy. Then he cashed dummy's queen of clubs, led a second club toward his hand and went up with his king. West dropped a low diamond and the student's fourth club trick had gone into limbo. Five minutes later the opponents had chalk-

Ann Landers

Bald men can't see themselves

Dear Ann Landers: I saw it again today and said to myself, "This is it! I've got to write to Ann Landers."

The problem is not mine but it has me baffled and I simply must find out from someone WHY they do it. I refer to aging males whose hair has thinned or largely departed. They let the few remaining strands grow long, then they drape them all over the head to create the illusion of hair.

Almost always the draped strands fall out of place, hang down over an ear or down the back of the neck and it looks ridiculous.

These men are not blind. Why don't they realize what they look like? — Pet Peeve From Puerto Rico

Dear Pet: Robert Burns said it best: "O wad some Pow'r the giftie gie us To see ourselves as others see us!"

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to comment on the letter from the unhappy "liberated" woman encouraged her to "do her thing." Later she learned he was "libbing it up" with girls less than half his age. She went on to say he bragged about having sex in automobiles, on the beach and even in a haystack. You called him "a case of arrested development." Why?

My husband and I have been married for 30 years and our sex life is more exciting now than it was on our honeymoon. He taught me not to be a prude — to be willing to experiment and let myself go. We've made love in the car, in the woods, on the beach and in every room in the house. A change of scenery can do wonders!

Four years ago we put in a swimming pool. We'd heard about skinny-dipping followed up by sex and decided to try it on a very dark night. It was so terrific we've made it a regular thing. Honestly, Ann, that pool has done more for our love-life than any vacation we ever took.

Dear Woman: I'm glad you sent the picture so I could see your problem.

Don't lie. Tell people it's "just a space." But—you don't have to go through life with it. If your mom will take you to a dentist he (or she) will fix it so you will have a beautiful smile when you're older. No one should go through life with a defect he hates if something can be done to fix it. Good luck, Sweetie.

Can your car pass the Rabbit Test?

- More luggage space than in the trunk of a Cadillac Fleetwood.
- 0 to 60 faster than a Jaguar XJ6L.
- Terrific Economy!

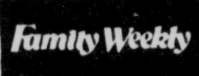

If your car has all this, you not only own a great car, chances are you already own a Rabbit. For no other car we know of - at any price - can match the Rabbit's combination of interior roominess, performance, and economy. It gives you 19.4 cubic feet of cargo space with the rear seat folded down. It can take you from 0 to 60 in only 11.5 seconds. *And according to the latest EPA tests, it gets 37 mpg on the highway, 24 mpg in the city with standard transmission. (Mileage may vary depending on how and where you drive, optional equipment and the condition of your car.) With all these impressive figures, we suggest you test drive the Rabbit at your Volkswagen Dealer. That way, you can put it to the test yourself.

The Rabbit. You've got to drive it to believe it.

*Tests conducted by Motor Trend

AS SEEN IN

WITH 39 HIGHWAY AND 29 CITY MPG, SUBARU IS ONE CAR THAT WON'T SOAK YOU AT THE PUMP.

These mileage results are based on EPA test estimates of our manual transmission sedan. But a Subaru is resourceful in another way, too.

That's because every Subaru runs on regular gas. Not only that, they'll take high test and unleaded gas in a pinch.

Your mileage may vary because of the way you drive, driving conditions, the condition of your car, and whatever optional equipment you might have. But the Subaru is one car that does not have a drinking problem.

Rally stripe and wheel trim rings are extra cost options.

Patty Hearst may be released on $500,000 bond

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst's father and uncle posted $500,000 bail Thursday for her release from prison while she awaits trial on state charges. But she remains jailed on a federal bank robbery conviction while a judge decides whether to grant bail pending appeal in that case.

The final decision on whether she would be freed rested with the San Francisco judge who has jurisdiction over the bank robbery case. A federal court clerk in San Francisco told reporters not to expect any action Thursday night on Miss Hearst's request for bail on the bank robbery conviction.

In Los Angeles, meanwhile, Superior Court Judge William Ritz said he would reconsider later lowering Miss Hearst's bail on state charges if she is released.

She faces trial in state court here Jan. 10 on charges of kidnaping, robbery and assault in connection with a shooting at an Inglewood sporting goods store in May 1974.

U.S. District Court Judge William Orrick must decide whether the 22-year-old Miss Hearst can be granted bail in San Francisco pending appeal of her federal bank robbery conviction. She is under a seven-year sentence, and her release is discretionary on the part of the judge.

Her bail was revoked in San Francisco shortly after her capture in September 1975 when it was thought she might be a flight risk.

Ritz refused a request from Miss Hearst's attorney, Al Johnson, to reduce her bail to $250,000 but said he would reconsider it after he hears the ruling of U.S. District Court Judge William Orrick.

"If she is released by the San Francisco court and if bail is substantial in that case, I certainly would consider reduction of bond," Ritz said.

He added, "I don't know what the San Francisco court is going to do."

He said, however, that Johnson's rush to post bail here had indicated to him that Johnson has information about Orrick's impending action.

"From what you say, I can only assume that the San Francisco court is going to release her on bail," said the judge.

Randolph A. Hearst, president of the San Francisco Examiner, appeared before the judge with his twin brother, David Hearst, and both signed documents giving personal surety to cover the $500,000.

The judge agreed to seal the bail documents at Johnson's request. The attorney cited "the personal nature" of the items which were pledged. It was believed that Hearst family property and other holdings were offered as collateral for the bond.

Johnson said he hoped Miss Hearst would be released "as soon as is practical."

He told the judge of an elaborate security plan for Miss Hearst which has been devised with the help of law enforcement officials and "security consultants." But he said the plan remains secret, known only to Orrick and the attorneys.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Sam Mayerson, who is to prosecute the 22-year-old heiress on state charges of kidnaping, assault and robbery, said a reduced bail would be acceptable to his office only "if we know the plan that has been set up in San Francisco."

Johnson's insistence that word of Miss Hearst's bail be sent to the prison immediately indicated that he expects her imminent release.

It would be the first time in 14 months that Miss Hearst has been out of prison. She was captured Sept. 18, 1975, after 19 months as a fugitive in the radical underground.

She was kidnaped by the terrorist Symphonies Liberation Army on Feb. 4, 1974, and subsequently announced she had joined the radical band.

Miss Hearst's lawyers have argued that while her appeals are pending and she is testifying for the state she would be safer out of jail than she is behind bars.

She faces trial in Los Angeles on charges of kidnaping, assault and robbery. Her attorneys have voiced hopes that they can win a dismissal of that case which is scheduled to begin Jan. 10.

New GNP figures below predictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Revised government estimates released Thursday showed that the nation's troubled economy entered the fourth quarter in worse condition than originally thought.

But Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said conditions don't appear bad enough at this time to warrant a tax cut to stimulate the economy.

Two University of Michigan economists, however, said that even with a $13 billion tax cut, the economy would grow next year only a shade faster than necessary to reduce unemployment. Advisers to President-elect Jimmy Carter have suggested tax cuts ranging from $8 billion to $15 billion.

The Commerce Department said Gross National Product, or the total output of goods and services in the economy, grew at an annual rate of 3.8 per cent during the July-September quarter. That was a downward revision from the preliminary estimate last month of a 4 per cent growth rate, the rate generally considered sufficient to keep up with normal population growth. But the rate is believed insufficient to reduce unemployment.

The figures were revised primarily because some figures in the preliminary report had to be estimated for the final month of the quarter. The foreign trade surplus on goods and services, for example, was revised downward by $2.5 billion to an annual rate of $3.4 billion.

A Commerce Department economist, Maynard S. Comiez, said the revision was not large statistically and didn't significantly change what economists knew about the third quarter.

But the revision meant that the economy was weaker than originally thought during the final month.

The inflation rate estimated in the GNP was revised downward from an annual rate of 4.4 per cent to 4.2 per cent.

Individual disposable income, adjusted for both taxes and inflation, originally increased by $1 from the $4,143 posted in the second quarter. The revision changed that to a $1 drop. The figures are based on 1972 dollars.

Final sales, which are considered the measure of ultimate demand in the economy, grew at an annual rate of 4.1 per cent for the third quarter, compared to 4.2 per cent in the second quarter and 4.4 per cent estimated in the third quarter.

The revisions followed two monthly drops in industrial production, a flat performance in retail sales over four months and a rise in the unemployment rate from 7.8 per cent to 7.9 per cent.

But personal income grew at a faster pace in October, activity in the housing industry picked up and corporate profits increased. Higher profits increase the possibility that a hoped-for pick-up in business spending may be in the offing.

Burns said in a New York City speech that "we as a nation are entirely capable of achieving sustained, noninflationary expansion of our economy in the future."

Although he did not comment on the revised figures, he said he sees no need for a tax cut at the present time, but is keeping an open mind on the possibility of a tax cut at a later date.

Carter has said that a tax cut is a strong possibility if the economy doesn't show more strength by January.

Arson suspected cause in nursing home blaze

WINCHESTER, Mo. (AP) — A nursing home fire hospitalized seven elderly men Thursday, and authorities said an investigation indicated arson as the cause.

Listed in critical condition at St. Louis County Hospital after fire swept through a cottage at the Manchester Nursing Home in west St. Louis County were William Davis, 65, and Harold Schneider, 72. Davis suffered facial and head burns; Schneider suffered smoke inhalation.

Four other men, including John Mosbach, 95, were in serious condition at County Hospital, suffering from smoke inhalation or burns.

William Sullivan, 92, was described in good condition at St. John's Mercy Medical Center with burns of the face and head.

Police Chief Donald Loehr of Ballwin Mo., said an investigation conducted by his department, Manchester fire protection district Chief Joseph Baker and Deputy State Fire Marshal Louis Gray led to the conclusion the fire was caused by arson.

The fire started in a linen closet in the main room of the one-story cottage. Loehr said three areas on the floor of the closet were heavily burned where a flammable liquid had apparently been poured and set afire.

Loehr said officials were investigating reports that a male patient was seen leaving the closet shortly before the fire broke out.

Two residents of the home were treated and released.

Firemen said 16 patients were in the cottage when the fire started shortly after 6:30 a.m. Several were assisted out by nurses aides on duty in the cottage, and the rest were rescued by firemen wearing masks.

The patients in the burned cottage ranged from 27 to 94 years.

Warsaw rescue earns Iowa boy Red Cross award

ALTOONA, Iowa (AP) — Jaime Olson, 11, was presented a Red Cross certificate of recognition for "extraordinary personal action" at a school assembly Thursday for saving the life of a drowning playmate.

Jaime said he was visiting his grandmother in Warsaw, Mo., and was swimming across a cove with two other boys when one, Larry Lyle, 7, began floundering midway across the cove.

"I swam out and pulled him in," said Jaime.

Larry Bair, director for safety programs for the Iowa division of the Red Cross, said the rescue had been documented and that "without Jaime, the boy surely would have drowned."

FBI aides said nothing

Kelley not told of burglaries

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley has disclosed that his top aides told him nothing when he complained to them privately that someone in the bureau was lying to him about FBI burglaries.

In a deposition made public Thursday, Kelley testified that he has never been told details of burglaries conducted by FBI agents after 1966 against persons thought to be involved with militant political groups.

He said he never sought such information either from his own staff or from Justice Department officials conducting a criminal investigation of the burglaries.

But Kelley disclosed for the first time that he discussed the matter in a private meeting of senior FBI officials and that none offered any information.

Kelley was questioned under oath Nov. 3 by Leonard Boudin, the New York attorney representing the Socialist Workers Party. The party has filed a multimillion-dollar damage suit against the FBI for allegedly illegal harassment.

The Political Rights Defense Fund, which is financing the lawsuit, provided a transcript of the deposition to reporters on Wednesday.

Assistant U.S. Atty. William S. Brandt then went to court in a last-minute effort to block release of Kelley's testimony on grounds that government officials had no time to review the transcript for accuracy.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Griesa, who is presiding over the case in New York, ordered a party attorney to request news organizations to return the copies.

Syd Stapleton, the defense fund's national secretary, called the judge's instructions "a gag order and a dangerous precedent. We consider it an out-and-out interference with our First Amendment right to make information available to the public."

He noted that Kelley and government lawyers had two weeks to review the transcript and said, "We consider that more than reasonable."

In the deposition, which is a form of taking testimony before trial, Kelley was asked what action he took after learning last spring that bureau officials had deceived him about the burglaries.

Kelley had made statements that there were no burglaries against domestic intelligence targets after 1966, later amended it to 1968, then discovered bureau files showing burglaries occurring until April 1973.

The Socialist Workers Party offices were the targets of about 90 burglaries before 1966 and perhaps some after that.

Evidence mounts linking cancer to diet

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — The food you eat seems to influence your chances of getting or escaping certain cancers, scientists said Thursday.

It is estimated that one-half of the fatal cancers in women and one-third in men may be attributed in part to diet habits, said Dr. Paul A. Marks, director of Cancer Research Center of Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Foods high in fats appear to boost cancer risks, while those high in fiber content appear to reduce them, other speakers told a conference on nutrition and cancer.

High fat foods include butter, visible fat on steaks, some bakery goods and whole milk with high butterfat content. Fibrous foods include cereals and some vegetables.

If the "dangerous" elements in food could be identified, they then could be avoided, thus preventing many cancers, Dr. Marks said.

Such a search is on, with the National Cancer Institute (NCI) putting increased emphasis on studies of relationships between nutrition and cancer, said Dr. Gio B. Gori, of NCI's Division of Cancer Cause and Prevention.

The suspected hazards in certain foods comes from studies of both humans and animals.

Comparisons of different populations around the world finds some cancers correlated with intake of meat, likely due to its fat content, to fats themselves, and fiber, said Dr. Gori.

In a study of populations in 23 countries, the incidence of cancer of the intestines was higher among people whose diets were high in refined foods and low in fiber, Dr. Marks told the conference sponsored by the Institute of Human Nutrition and Cancer Research Center. Refined, or processed, foods include granulated sugar, polished rice and white flour.

Diet is also suspected of playing a role in cancers of the stomach, esophagus, colon and breast, Marks added.

Stomach cancer is more common in Japan than the United States. But the incidence goes down among Japanese who move to the United States and adopt the American style of food, Dr. Marks said.

Cancer of the large bowel is correlated with fatty foods in the diet, with less risk in people consuming dietary fiber, said Dr. David Kritchevsky of the Wistar Institute, Philadelphia.

There are many different substances in what is termed fiber, and "eventually it will be necessary to learn which particular component of fiber is responsible for specific observed effects," he added.

Animal experiments indicate that dietary fat seems to act "as a promoting agent, producing a more favorable environment for the development of latent tumor cells" in breast cancer, said Dr. Kenneth K. Carroll, biochemist of the University of Western Ontario in Canada.

Burn victim dies Thursday in Columbia

COLUMBIA — An 81-year-old Sedalia man, critically burned in a fire Nov. 11, died Thursday afternoon at the Harry S. Truman Veterans Memorial Hospital here.

Walter Paul, 419 North Prospect, Sedalia, was burned in a fire at Kathy's Boarding House where he lived. He apparently fell asleep in a chair while smoking his pipe. The pipe fell into the chair, which ignited, and the fire spread to his clothing.

He was treated first at Bothwell Hospital, Sedalia, for third-degree burns over half of his body, then was transferred to the hospital here for further treatment.

Mr. Paul was born in Pettis County on February 11, 1897, the son of the late George and Virginia Williams Paul. On Sept. 20, 1955, he married Mrs. Henrietta Cramer, who died June 9, 1969.

He was a veteran of World War I, and until his retirement in 1962, he worked at the Missouri-Pacific shops, Sedalia, as a carman. He was a member of the Bethlehem Baptist Church near Florence.

He is survived by two sons by a previous marriage, Wayne Paul, 1825 South Beacon, James Neif Paul, Stanwood, Wash.; a daughter by a previous marriage, Miss Janice Paul, 1000 South

Rural Sedalian killed while dragging field

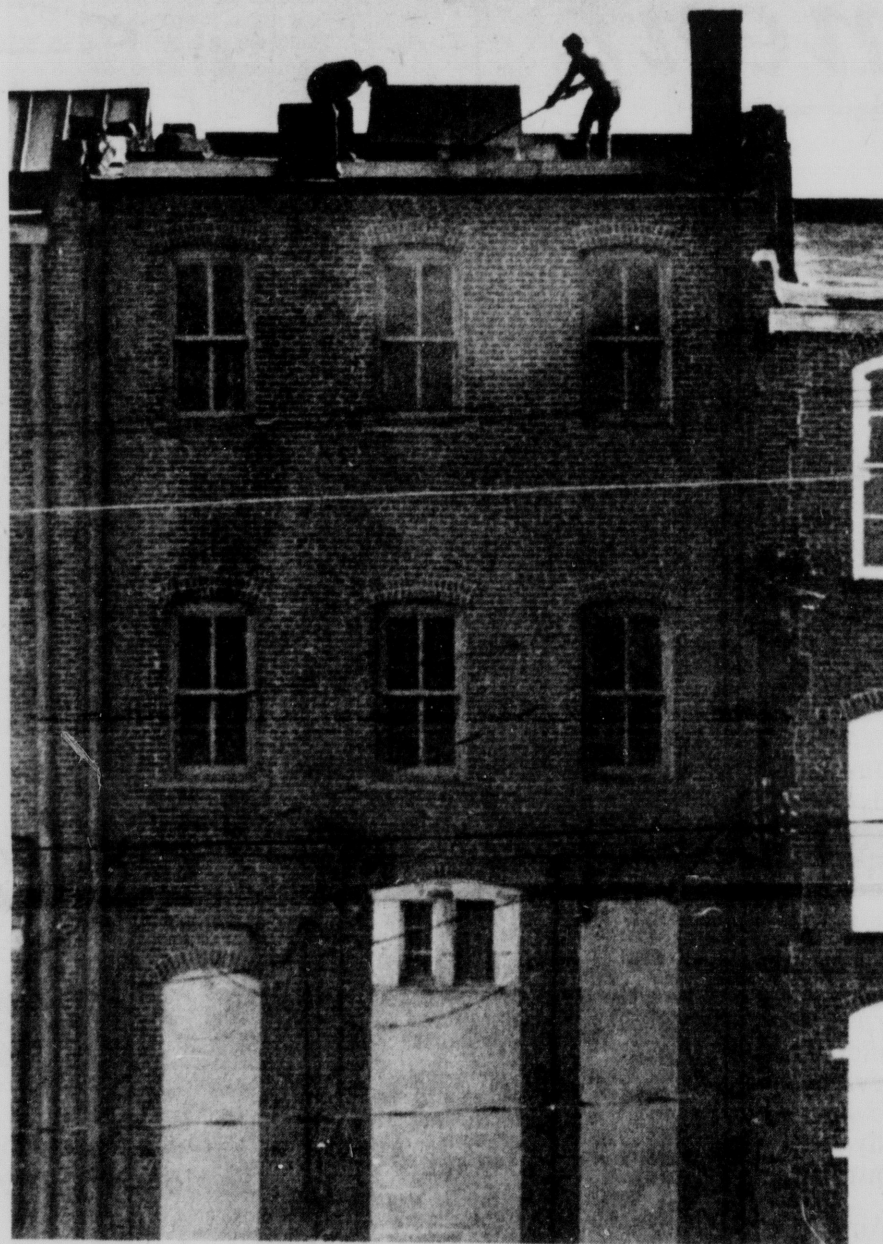

A tractor accident of undetermined origin claimed the life of James Heck, 74, Route 4, early Thursday evening, according to the Pettis County Sheriff's Department, as he was dragging a field about 14 miles southwest of Sedalia.

Neighbors found Heck pinned under the tow bar of his tractor about 7:10 p.m. He had been dragging a field with a railroad iron and chain about two miles west of Highway 65 when the accident occurred. A spokesman for the Sheriff's Department said the chain had become wrapped around the left rear wheel of the tractor, causing the wheel to dig into the ground and stop the motor. Authorities speculate that Heck was knocked off the tractor by the railroad iron or lost his balance and fell.

Pettis County Coroner Dr. John Owens reported Heck died of suffocation, according to a sheriff's deputy.

Survivors include his wife Irene Heck, of the home; two brothers, Joseph Heck, Tampa, Fla., and Alva J. Heck, 2201 South Grand.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete. The body is at the Heckart-Gillespie Funeral Home.

Funeral services for Mrs. Vallie Hart, 81, Fairview Nursing Home, who died Tuesday, will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Ewing Funeral Home with the Rev. Lawrence Stewart officiating.

Pallbearers will be David Knight, Steve Grose, Jack Venable, Jerry Venable, Buck Venable and Sonny Gamber.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery.

Some Missourians could be short of natural gas

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A colder winter than experienced the past two years could lead to some localized shortages of natural gas in Missouri this year, a draft report of the Missouri Energy Agency says.

But Wes Fisher, head of the agency, told the members of the Missouri Energy Council Thursday that there are adequate supplies of alternative fuels throughout the state.

The problem with those alternative fuels, Fisher said, is that they are much more expensive than natural gas. Propane, which is a major alternative to natural gas in Missouri, costs about three times more than natural gas to provide the same amount of energy, he said.

Marvin Nodiff, director of the planning and policy development division of the Department of Natural Resources, also cautioned the council that the staff report was only a draft and "there are still bugs in the report."

Howard Elliott, an official of Laclede Gas Co., said there will be no natural gas shortage on the eastern side of Missouri and emphasized that natural gas suppliers wanted to review figures in the report before agreeing with its conclusions.

The report, noting that natural gas consumption in the state had fallen by 16 per cent from 1971 to 1975, said delivery of natural gas to the state will be about 18.9 per cent higher than last year.

Man enters innocent plea to lake deaths

BOLIVAR, Mo. (AP) — Jeffrey Clinton Wylie, 30, pleaded innocent Wednesday to four charges of manslaughter in connection with the drownings Sept. 24 of his wife and three children in Lake Pomme de Terre.

Wylie was the only survivor of the Humansville, Mo., family when his station wagon plunged from a boat ramp at Bolivar Landing into the reservoir.

Trapped inside the car were his wife, Mrs. Nancy Myers Wylie, 35, their son, Jeffrey Richard Wylie, 3, and Mrs. Wylie's 8-year-old twins, Karen and Kevin Myers.

A Polk County coroner's jury later ruled culpable negligence, charging Wylie with "driving into the lake knowing they were trapped in the station wagon, and making no effort to rescue them."

Wylie's attorneys at his preliminary hearing Wednesday in Polk County District Court were granted assignment of a new judge on petition that the defendant "had just cause to believe...that he cannot have a fair and impartial trial" otherwise.

County judges vote to find way to resolve problems

Eastern District Judge Russell McFatrigh Wednesday joined in the unanimous vote of the board of directors of the Missouri Association of Counties regarding ways to compensate for the anticipated loss of tax revenue created by the recent passage of a special tax to be used for state conservation and park projects.

Because any land purchased by the state for park development or other purposes is exempt from taxation, the board voted to meet soon with officials of the State Department of Conservation. The board plans to discuss proposals to establish an equitable formula for providing compensation to counties to cover the loss of property tax revenue.

"Because counties rely so heavily on property taxes to finance their various operations, there needs to be some way that they will continue to receive funds to make up what they will lose when the state buys land in counties," McFatrigh explained. "We don't want more money, we just don't want to lose what we have got now."

Knob Noster man killed in accident

WARRENSBURG — A Knob Noster man was killed Thursday when his car was struck by a train at a crossing about four miles east of Warrensburg.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said that William Jackson Mayes, 68, died after the westbound freight train hit his car about 8:45 a.m. Mayes was thrown from the vehicle and was pronounced dead on arrival at Johnson County Hospital in Warrensburg.

'I knew I was going to die'

Man entombed for 90 minutes

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Daniel Durham says he looks at life differently now that he has the chips off his shoulders — some 30,000 pounds of them that entombed him alive for 90 minutes.

Durham was dumped into a truck, buried under six feet of wood chips and carried 40 miles while his screams went unheard. Someone even walked over the chips, unaware that Durham was buried beneath.

"All of a sudden I was falling, and then I was buried," Durham said Wednesday. "I may have blacked out a couple times from suffocation. I knew I couldn't last more than five minutes more."

Durham was leveling chips in an elevated bin last Friday when he was dumped accidentally into the truck, which then headed for a fiber company 40 miles away.

Jerry Thorp, supervisor at Lumber Specialty Industries Inc., said Durham had neglected to block the driveway with a board that keeps trucks from backing under the bin while somebody is working in it. Better safety precautions since have been instituted, Thorp said.

"I knew I was going to die," Durham said. "I struggled, I yelled, but nobody heard me. Then I realized I had better save my energy."

Durham said he was nearly trampled and suffocated when the truck stopped at a weigh station. "I could feel somebody walking right on top of me there, but no one heard me yelling," he said.

Unknown to Durham, back at the lumber company Thorp had noticed him gone about 15 minutes after the truck pulled away. Realizing he might be in the truck, Thorp phoned fiber company officials, who contacted the driver by radio.

An ambulance awaited the truck at Longview, and workers dug and clawed Durham free. He escaped with only three cracked ribs and internal bleeding which has cleared up.

"I'm not religious, but I have second thoughts now," he said. "I know God had something to do with me making it."

It's buyer beware in solar heating market

CHICAGO (AP) — Buyers of solar heating equipment can be burnt.

The new industry has its share of "snake-oil salesmen" and produces everything from "well-engineered systems right down to junk," an energy specialist said Thursday.

There is a need for government standards before new buyers get hurt or the industry itself "gets a black eye," hurting future development, said William Graves of Brookhaven Laboratories in Upton, N.Y.

Graves was among several energy specialists at a three-day exposition attended by about 20,000 members of the building industry.

Gregory Hurt of the Energy Research and Development Administration estimated there are more than 500 manufacturers of solar equipment, including some who are willing to "sell you the moon."

More than half the 56 energy-related exhibits at the exposition feature solar energy products or systems.

"My comments don't apply to what I've seen at this show," said Graves in an interview. "But I've been at other solar exhibits where the equipment has run the gamut from well-engineered systems right down to junk."

Technology is sufficient, Graves and others said, for solar heating and domestic hot water systems but prospective buyers should look closely at the cost benefits they expect to receive.

At current prices, solar heating may not be economically feasible.

A solar space heating system for a three-bedroom home may cost $7,000, Graves said. If it is financed through a 20-year home mortgage, principal and interest rates may work out for the solar plant to $63 a month, Graves said.

Extradition is waived by Nebraska man

LINCOLN, Neb. — A Nebraska man, imprisoned here, has signed a waiver of extradition to Pettis County where he has been wanted on forgery charges since 1973.

Thomas P. Bousfield, also known as Rene D. Desforages, 51, whose last address was South Sioux Falls, Neb., remains in prison here pending the arrival of Pettis County sheriff authorities. Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said he did not know when Bousfield would be brought back to Sedalia.

Bousfield is charged with "possession of a forged instrument and intent to utter it" and was arraigned on the charge Oct. 1, 1973 in Pettis County Magistrate Court. He was then released on $3,500 bond but failed to appear for his trial in Pettis County Circuit Court.

Bousfield, then going under the name of Deforges, allegedly attempted to cash a forged check on Sept. 28, 1973, at Sedalia Mercantile Bank and Trust, then Sedalia Bank and Trust. The check was for $175.55 and written on a Maryville, Mo., bank.

After his disappearance from Sedalia, Bousfield has served time in jail for different forgery charges in Iowa, Leavenworth, Kan., and Nebraska.

Boy, 11, shoots dog that attacked sister

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy may have saved his sister's life when he shot and killed a Doberman Pinscher that was mauling the girl, authorities say.

Police said the boy, Jamie Wright, fired three shots into the dog at point-blank range with his father's .22-caliber pistol when the animal attacked his 10-year-old sister, Vickie.

The girl was listed in fair condition at Midland Hospital on Wednesday following surgery for deep bites on both her legs.

"The dog would have killed my daughter," the children's mother said. "He would have killed her if Jamie didn't keep his head."

tricity and fuel, you haven't made anything off it," said Graves. "And any system would still have to be supplemented with more conventional fuels."

The new homebuilder, more than the commercial or industrial buyer, particularly would be vulnerable to high-pressure tactics or prone to buy inferior equipment, Graves said.

Graves said most homeowners would deal only with salesmen, and probably the salesman for the distributor, not the manufacturer.

"These people (the salesmen) are going to be under a lot of price pressure trying to be competitive and there will be a real driving force to get it in cheap, get it in quick and get out," Graves said.

New social unrest hits Communist E. Germany

BERLIN (AP) — Open dissidence has broken out in Communist East Germany at a level not seen since the tumult of the 1950s.

For the first time ever, a group of East German intellectuals has formally called on the government to reverse a hardline position in expelling popular balladeer Wolf Biermann and revoking his East German citizenship.

The satirical ballads of Biermann, an avowed if unorthodox Communist, have long irked East German leaders.

Some Western observers speculated the East German authorities were launching a new wave of repression against individual expression.

Biermann's expulsion follows a Protestant clergyman's burning himself to death in political protest last August and official actions against two writers in recent weeks. One was expelled from the country and the other from the East German Writers' Association.

A number of private citizens have openly expressed their desire to travel outside their walled-in state. Up to 20,000 persons are estimated to have officially requested permission to resettle in West Germany, and knowledgeable Western diplomats in Berlin claim 200,000 or more would leave if there were no restrictions.

The current wave of dissent is the strongest since a brief flareup in 1956, after the abortive Hungarian revolt of that year, which brought a major clampdown inside the still Soviet-controlled part of Germany.

A citizens' band radio antenna was stolen from his car sometime Wednesday, he told police. He heard a car outside his door, and when he went outside, the car drove off and the antenna was missing. A wheelbarrow and an 80-quart cooler were also reported stolen sometime Sunday, according to police.

Free fishing age lowered five years

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Conservation Commission has lowered the age for free fishing for Missourians to 65 from the present 70, and increased the free fishing age for youngsters to 16 years instead of the present 15.

Missourians with proof of age, usually a driver's license, will be able to fish without buying a fishing permit after Jan. 1 if they are 65 or older, or if they have not passed their 16th birthday.

Those 65 or over, if they don't have a driver's license, may get a proof of age form from the Conservation Department.

Missouri voters recently approved a one-eighth cent sales tax proposal, which will increase the funding for the Conservation Department. Receipts from the sale of fishing and hunting permits had been used to finance the bulk of the department's operations in the past.
